FOREWORD

by David Curtis Dearborn

Forty years have passed since the publication of Morgan Hewitt Stafford's Descendants of John Thorndike of Essex County, Massachusetts. Though this may not seem so long ago to some, much of the material on twentieth-century Thorndikes was nearly a generation out of date when the book was published, and today's more critical standards of scholarship and documentation highlight the inadequacies of the 1960 book. This is not to say that Stafford's work was substandard. On the contrary, it has always been and continues to be held in high regard by discerning genealogists.

As early as 1934, Dr. Augustus[8] Thorndike of Boston, who when not practicing medicine avidly studied the Thorndike genealogy, commissioned Mr. Stafford, a professional genealogist and resident of Newton, Mass., to research the family further and prepare the material for publication. Mr. Stafford, who is equally known for the monumental A Genealogy of the Kidder Family (1941), began assembling the data onto yellow family group sheets, with documentation from original and secondary sources written on the backs, and all arranged carefully according to generation and place within the family. The information came from his patron, from what he himself gathered, and through correspondence and questionnaires returned by family members. Then, in 1940, both Dr. Thorndike and Mr. Stafford died, and all work on the project ceased. In 1950 the working notes, comprising five boxes of group sheets, correspondence and family artifacts, were deposited with the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston, where they remain today. Finally in 1960, Dr. Thorndike's children arranged for the publication of the work, bringing their own lines and a few others down to the present, but essentially leaving Mr. Stafford's work as it was. The genealogy was arranged according to the form made popular by The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, stopping at the tenth generation, and even providing interleaved blank pages in the last generation, so that purchasers of the book could record their own lines individually.

In November 1980, the Thorndikes held a family dinner at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, attended by 177 descendants of the immigrant John. Those attending, including a representative of the Peruvian Thorndikes, submitted updated information on their lines, and this material was published in the form of a pamphlet in 1982. In 1996 the family approached

D. Brenton Simons of the Newbury Street Press about bringing out a completely revised, up-to-date genealogy.

This book represents a major advance in the level of research and documentation of sources over its predecessor. Working with the foundation laid by Stafford, editors John Bradley Arthaud and Scott C. Steward, both genealogists who are well acquainted with Essex County and the North Shore, re-examined numerous primary sources, including all early Essex County deeds, to bring the work up to twenty-first century scholarly standards. Copious footnotes direct the reader to the source of each factual statement, without disturbing the narrative. Additionally, Steward presents new scholarship on the Thorndike and Stratton families in England. While the English origins of the Thorndikes and Strattons has long been known, thanks in part to H.F. Waters' Genealogical Gleanings in England and Lechford's Note-Book, respectively, Stafford's 1960 book only alludes to this in passing. The present editors give a full accounting of our family in England and include abstracts of a number of English wills.[1]

Many otherwise reputable genealogies are sullied by the inclusion of a bogus coat of arms, often lifted from Burke's General Armory or similar source, without any proof of proper claim to use, other than the fact that the surname is the same as that which appears under the arms. We can be justly proud of the fact that both John[1] Thorndike and his wife Elizabeth Stratton were entitled to use a coat of arms, a fact recognized by the NEHGS Committee on Heraldry, which has enrolled the Thorndike and Stratton arms on its Roll of Arms as numbers 11 and 425 respectively.

When John[1] Thorndike arrived in New England around 1632, he began the family's long connection to Boston's North Shore. Generations of Thorndikes have lived in and around Beverly, and continue to do so today. While most of the early males in the family were mariners, ranging far and wide in their vessels, they were reluctant to move away from their home. It is only in the fifth generation, around the time of the American Revolution, that branches begin moving away to more westerly parts of Massachusetts, and to Maine and New Hampshire.

[1]Readers may also wish to read the sketch of John[1] Thorndike that appears in Robert Charles Anderson, The Great Migration Begins: Immigrants to New England 1620–1633, 3 vols. (Boston: NEHGS, 1995), 3:1811–14, which reprints the valuable text from Lechford's Note-Book delineating the Stratton-Dearhaugh connection.

Three facts contribute to making the Thorndikes a relatively easy family to trace: 1) the family had the good sense to settle in Essex County, which arguably has the best and most complete records for genealogical research; 2) the name of Thorndike is distinctive (all early people of the name in New England, and probably the majority of people in America today bearing the surname, trace to John[1]); and 3) the family is remarkably small. John the immigrant, besides several daughters, was survived by an only son, Paul[2] (1642–by 1698). Paul had three sons, but only two left male issue that continued beyond the fourth generation. John[3] (1674–1760) had five sons, only four of whom left male issue that continued into the sixth generation, though that still qualifies him as the ancestor of most Thorndikes living today, including most of the Maine branches and the Peruvian branch. Paul[3] (1677–1742) had ten sons, but only one of these, Andrew[4] (1719–1761), left issue beyond the sixth generation. He is the ancestor of many of the Thorndikes who remained in the Beverly and Boston area, as well as the German branch. Besides those descendants bearing the name of Thorndike, there are countless others, like myself,[2] who descend from the family through female lines. In general, it is beyond the task of any genealogist to include all lines of descent, so this work wisely limits itself to listing descendants only to children of female Thorndikes.

Examination of the United States Census gives a good picture of both the growth and spread of the family. In the first U.S. Census of 1790, Massachusetts had ten Thorndike households, Maine six and New Hampshire two. By the 1820 Census, Maine was in the lead with 15 households, Massachusetts had 12, New Hampshire and Ohio each had two, and Vermont, New York and Pennsylvania had one apiece. In the 1850 Census the ranking was as follows: Maine 51, Mass. 29, New Hampshire 5, California 4, New York 3, and Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin, 2 each. The Thorndikes thus were typical of North Shore Massachusetts families, who flocked Downeast in large numbers rather than moving West. By the mid-1800s, however, branches were starting to move out of New England to the Midwestern states, and with the Gold Rush, to California. Good Yankees that they were, they carefully avoided those states south of the Mason and Dixon line which later became the Confederacy.

Where are the Thorndikes today? Not surprisingly, over a third still call New England home, with the rest clustered in key far western states and the sunbelt. A search of the "People Finder" feature on Switchboard.com reveals a total of 328 Thorndike entries, of whom 125 are in New England (Maine 40, Massachusetts 35, New Hampshire 19, Connecticut 18, Vermont 11 and Rhode Island 2). Other major states are: Washington 32, California 29, Florida 16, Illinois, Ohio and Virginia. 11 each, New York and Oregon 9 each, Colorado and Texas 8 each, and Iowa, Michigan, Nevada and North Carolina 5 each, and lesser numbers in other states (a search of Yahoo.com turned up a similar pattern but lesser numbers).

[2]I trace my line through Paul's daughter Martha[3] Thorndike (–1749+), wife of Richard Thissell (c1685–1752), through their son, Jeffrey[4] Thissell (1716–1794) of Beverly.

An interesting and unusual feature of our family are its "foreign" branches. The Peruvian branch traces its descent from John Larkin[8] Thorndike (1834–1901), a native of Malone, N.Y. who had gone to California when a young man, where he became associated with Henry Meiggs, a fellow New Yorker who made a fortune in San Francisco in the lumber business. When the boom times ended, Meiggs discovered that he had over-reached himself, and sailed out into the Pacific under cover of darkness, leaving behind him obligations of over $800,000. John Larkin followed him to South America, where he became Meiggs' chief engineer in his railroad-building enterprises in Chile and later Peru. John Larkin took over the business after Meiggs' death in 1877, became financially successful, and raised a large family. The present-day Peruvian Thorndikes descend from John Larkin's son, Ernesto Hérmogenes[9] Thorndike Mathieu (1860–1938), and are fully enumerated in the pages of this book. Ernesto's grandson, Felipe Antonio[11] Thorndike Beltrán, attended the 1980 reunion and gave an interesting report on his family which was printed in the 1982 pamphlet.

The German branch was founded by Andrew[6] (1790–1854), a Bowdoin College graduate and merchant involved in the China trade, who eventually settled in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, where he married and had a daughter and a son. Two of Andrew's nieces married German brothers named Oelrichs, and their descendants remained in Germany as well. Perhaps the most notable descendant of the German branch is Andrew Julius[9] Thorndike (1909–?), the son of a Berlin filmmaker. In the late 1930s, rejecting his father's pro-Nazi views, he engaged in anti-Hitler activities, was arrested and put in a "punishment battalion" as a nurse on the Eastern front. Captured by the Russians, he spent three years as a prisoner of war. After the war he turned down his father's offer to work in the West German film industry, and moved to East Berlin. He and his wife Annelie made a number of films, including "Die alte neue Welt" ("The Old New World," 1977), and the extraordinary documentary, "The Russian Miracle," described as a "triumph of technical achievement in the restoration of old photographs and the use of an ingenious process by which some of the stills are animated and appear to be film footage,"[3] apparently anticipating the innovations of the American documentary film maker, Ken Burns. Regrettably, although contacted and invited to submit updated genealogical data, none of the German Thorndikes responded with new information.[4]

Surprisingly, only two places bear the Thorndike name: the town of Thorndike, Maine[5] and the village of Thorndike, on the Ware River, in Palmer, Massachusetts.[6] Thorndike Streets, Avenues and Roads, not surprisingly, are more numerous, to be found in Beverly, Salem, Lawrence, Lowell, Reading, Fitchburg, Holyoke, Mass., several Boston suburbs including Charlestown, Cambridge, Everett, Revere and Somerville; Concord, New Hampshire, Belfast, Maine, and Camden, New Jersey.[7] More substantial monuments to the family remain, as well, from the weathered Thorndike gravestones in the Central Burying Ground in Beverly, to the family homestead standing not far away at 184 Hale Street, built as early as 1696 by John[3] Thorndike.[8]

No genealogical work is perfect, nor can it ever be complete. But our family's history and heritage is worth preserving. Many family members have cooperated with the compilation of this book by providing up to date information. Others have supported the New England Historic

[4]A search of the website "Das Telefonbuch" (http://www.teleauskunft.de/NSAPI/Anfrage) shows nine listings for the name Thorndike, including Andreas, Helga and Katharina at the same address in the Berlin suburb of Potsdam. Annelie Thorndike, perhaps Andrew's wife or widow, lives in Seebad Bansin, on the Baltic Sea, just a few miles from the Polish border.

[5]Thorndike was settled in 1799 as Lincoln Plantation and incorporated as Thorndike in 1819. It was named for Israel[5] Thorndike (1755–1832) of Beverly and Boston, a wealthy merchant, who acquired a large tract of land there in 1806, subdivided it and built a fine mansion with broad lawns and large barns. He stocked the farm with imported Hereford cattle and Merino sheep, and planted an orchard of 500 apple trees. Among his distinguished guests was Daniel Webster, who came from Boston by coach for the hunting and fishing (Ava Harriet Chadbourne, Maine Place Names and the Peopling of Its Towns: Lincoln, Waldo and Knox Counties [Freeport, Me., 1957], pp. 44–45).

[6]Named for Israel[6] Thorndike (1785–1867) of Boston, son of Israel[5]. In 1836 he, along with John S. Wright and Luther Parks, were granted an act of incorporation as the Thorndike Company, for the purpose of manufacturing cotton, woolen and silk goods. Several dams were erected at the falls and mill buildings raised. By the late 1800s Thorndike had grown into a substantial village, with churches, schools, stores, and a population (in 1900) of approximately 1,700 (J.H. Temple, History of the Town of Palmer, Massachusetts [1889], pp. 269–72; Alfred Minot Copeland, ed., "Our County and Its People": A History of Hampden County, Massachusetts [1902], 3:145–47).

Genealogical Society, which among other things, permitted the research to be suitably documented and making possible research on the Thorndikes in England. The dawn of the new millennium is a propitious time to ponder again who we are and where we came from. May this book help all Thorndike descendants to reconnect with our history.

Acknowledgments

In 1996, John Lowell Thorndike, a past council member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, approached me about the possibility of organizing an update of Morgan Hewitt Stafford's 1960 Thorndike genealogy. With the enthusiastic help and support of several members of the Thorndike family, a research project was soon initiated. Genealogists Scott C. Steward and John Bradley Arthaud were brought on board to oversee research, compilation, and editing. What you see before you is a testament to their hard work, diligence, skill, and perseverance.

Several members of the Thorndike family must be warmly thanked not only for their marvelous support of this book but also for their assistance in furthering the mission of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. These individuals are Richard K. Thorndike of Ponte Verde Beach, Fla.; John Lowell Thorndike of Dover, Mass.; W. Nicholas Thorndike of Brookline, Mass.; John Thorndike of Greenwich, Conn.; William A. Thorndike of Charlestown, Mass.; and Felipe A. Thorndike of Lima, Peru. Other family members have been supportive, including David B. Arnold, Jr., of Boston; Elinor Boveroux of Upper Montclair, N.J.; and Dr. Augustus T. Crocker of Dublin, N.H. Our gratitude to every one of these family members cannot be underestimated.

This book also reflects the fine help of scores of Thorndike descendants who replied with completed questionnaires from locations throughout the Americas. New branches have been added to the Thorndike family tree, and others have been extended. We were delighted to receive this valuable information, and it has been deposited in the Society's permanent Thorndike family manuscript collection. A substantial family manuscript collection was given to NEHGS by Richard K. Thorndike, to whom we are especially indebted.

This book would not have been possible without the help of several other individuals. K. David Goss, executive director, and Stephen P. Hall, archivist, of the Beverly Historical Society & Museum graciously provided convenient access to the many Thorndike documents and records preserved by that society. Volunteering at the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Nancy Garvin spent many hours fact-checking the text. NEHGS senior research scholar Gary Boyd Roberts reviewed the text and made helpful additions. Reference librarian (and Thorndike descendant) David Curtis Dearborn prepared an excellent foreword to the book and added considerable vital data to recent generations. Linda Skinner Austin, Jayna S. Stafford, Linda R. McGuire, and Thomas D. Kozachek of the Newbury Street Press are thanked for their editorial and organizational skills.

INTRODUCTION

The following book, published in 2000, is based on work commissioned in the 1930s; it also draws upon research undertaken by Effie Maria[9] Thorndike, Townsend William[9] Thorndike, Robert Amory[9] Thorndike, John Lowell[10] Thorndike, and others. Morgan Hewitt Stafford, whose 1930s research was published in 1960 as Descendants of John Thorndike of Essex County, Massachusetts, died in 1940, so the book bearing his name as author is actually a production separated by decades from Mr. Stafford's original research. The present work follows the format of the original volume, but necessarily expands upon it.

John Thorndike and Elizabeth Stratton — ancestors of the Thorndike family of Essex County, Massachusetts — belonged to wealthy yeoman and gentry families in England; as a result, their paths were smoothed in the new world to a remarkable degree. After a generation or two, this initial advantage faded, as the family grew in size and spread out, but by the early nineteenth century several branches had begun to prosper in ways unimagined by their immigrant forebears. From families of New England farmers and fishermen sprang lawyers, doctors, merchants, sea captains, engineers, and industrialists; at the same time Thorndikes began moving west, until they could be found in every corner of the growing United States.

Israel[5] Thorndike, the shipping magnate, was one of the first Thorndikes to make his mark, but other family members include: John Proctor, the Salem witchcraft martyr (husband of Elizabeth[2] Thorndike); George Thorndike[7] Angell, the animal rights activist (son of Rebecca[6] Thorndike); Dr. William Henry[7] Thorndike and his son, Dr. Townsend William[8] Thorndike; the line of European diplomats descended from Anna Dodge[7] Thorndike; G. Quincy[8] Thorndike and Charles Hall[8] Thorndike, the painters; John Larkin[8] Thorndike of Lima, Peru, the railroad builder; Allen Thorndike[8] Rice, the publisher (son of Elizabeth Francis[7] Thorndike); Dr. Augustus[8] Thorndike and his son, Dr. Augustus[9] Thorndike, pioneers in orthopedic and sports medicine; Professors Ashley Horace[9] Thorndike, Edward Lee[9] Thorndike, and Lynn[9] Thorndike of Columbia University; John Larkin[9] Thorndike of Boston, the legal scholar; William[9] Endicott, the banker and philanthropist (grandson of Clarissa[7] Thorndike); Dr. John Charles Rock, developer of "the Pill" (husband of Anna[10] Thorndike); Joseph Jacobs[10] Thorndike, the magazine publisher; the Duchess of France, wife of the current Orléanist claimant to the French throne, Micaela Anna Maria[10] Cousiño y Quiñones de Léon (great-granddaughter of Mary Adeline[7] Thorndike); and Senator John Forbes[11] Kerry (great-great-great-grandson of Elizabeth[6] Thorndike). Their stories — and the stories of the hundreds of other Thorndikes profiled in this book — make for fascinating reading, illuminating the history of America from the seventeenth to the twenty-first century.

Nicholas Thorndike of Greenfield was named as the brother-in-law of John Fyshwick of East Saltfleetby, Lincolnshire, yeoman, in 1572.[2] He was one of the supervisors of the will of Nicholas Thorndicke of Great Carlton, Lincolnshire, in 1580,[3] and the sole supervisor of the will of John Thorndike of Little Carlton in 1591.[4]

In his will, dated 20 October 1595, he made bequests to his sons, ffrancis and Herberte; to his daughters, Joane Newcomen and Anne Walgrave; to "Maudline Northe my Sisters daughter"; to "everye one of the children of Harberte Blancharde"; "everye of the children of John Thorndyke of Little Carleton"; to "James and ffrancis Thorndyke children of Nicholas Thorndyke"; to "John Thorndyke sonne of John Thorndyke"; to "George Thorndyke and Robert Thorndyke my Servante either of them"; and "unto ffrancis my wife besydes her owne goodes which she broughte unto me One Annuytie of Tenne Poundes by the yeare for and duringe the terme of her naturall life." Frances Thorndike's annuity was conditioned on her making no "Clayme or Demande of any Thirdes of my Landes in Lowth or elsewhere."[5]

Margarett Thorndike, wife of Nicholas, was buried at Aby 31 May 1589.[6] The will of Herbert Blanchard of Lowth, Lincolnshire, yeoman, dated 8 January 1591 and proved 22 August 1592, names "my mother Frances Thorndike" and "my sister Northe."[7] According to Canon Maddison's pedigree of the Thorndike family of Greenfield, Nicholas Thorndike married FRANCES (or MARGARET) SOUTHREY or SOTHEBY.[8] It is possible that MARGARET (SOUTHREY or SOTHEBY) THORNDIKE was Nicholas's first wife, and that FRANCES (—)

[78]Will of Nicholas Thorndike of Greenfield, Lincolnshire.

[79]Francis Thorndike of Scamblesby, son of Nicholas of Greenfield, was a contemporary of Francis Thorndike of Great Carlton, son of Nicholas of Great Carlton. It is likely that the two Nicholases were near kinsmen (perhaps as closely related as first cousins), although to date the exact degree of kinship is unknown. The baptisms for children of Francis Thorndike of Great Carlton (which include a John Thorndike, and which may be found in Appendix 1) should not be confused with the children of Francis Thorndike of Scamblesby. Other than Francis Thorndike, son of Francis, baptized at Great Waldingfield, Suffolk, I am unaware of any baptismal records for John[1] Thorndike or any of his siblings.

hold minor and major Trinity fellowships.[104] The Dictionary of National Biography notes that "For upwards of a quarter of a century from the time of his first entry [at Trinity College] his career was that of an indefatigable student, although he was also active as a college tutor, deputy public orator, and university preacher, and occasionally resided on his college living. The bent of his studies was towards theology and oriental languages, and especially rabbinical literature. As a churchman, his position at this period was that of a moderate Anglican."

In 1636, Thorndike succeeded the poet George Herbert as prebendary of Layton Ecclesia at Lincoln Cathedral, and in 1640 he was appointed to the crown living of Claybrook, near Lutterworth, Leicestershire. He became Hebrew lecturer at Trinity in the latter year; two years later, he was transferred to the royal living of Barley, Hertfordshire, and was also appointed senior bursar at Trinity.

He published Of the Government of Churches in 1641; Religious Assemblies and the Publick Service of God appeared in 1642. In September 1643, Thorndike was a candidate for the mastership of Sidney Sussex College at Cambridge, where a number of the fellows "sought to carry [his] election. Their design was defeated by [Oliver] Cromwell, who caused one of Thorndike's supporters to be arrested and conveyed away, thereby procuring the election of Richard Minshull."

He left Cambridge in the mid-1640s, as the town had become untenable for fellows with royalist sympathies. "He was now and down to 1652 reduced to great shifts, but was assisted by occasional bounties from his college and by the liberality of Lord Scudamore, whose religious views had a close affinity to his own ... while his elder brother Francis, who had succeeded to the paternal estate in 1644, probably gave him substantial aid." His Discourse of the Right of the Church in a Christian State appeared in 1649, and a new edition of The Primitive Government of Churches and The Service of God, "enlarged with a Review," was published in the same period.

During 1650s Thorndike edited Walton's Polyglott and collected materials for a new edition of Origen. In 1659, he published An Epilogue to the Tragedy of the Church of England, in which he suggested "that the Reformation, as a durable settlement, was practicable only on the basis of a return to the discipline and teaching of the primitive catholic church. In order to secure for the book a wider circulation, he wrote it in Latin, although he did not include either the church of Rome or the protestant churches abroad in his plan of reunion, his aim being chiefly to define the ground on which, as he said, the church of England could alone make good her position against ultramontanism abroad and separatism at home. To the visible catholic church as thus defined and restored he professed an allegiance to which his duty to the church of England itself was subordinate. As an endeavour to promote the cause of unity, however, the 'Epilogue' must be pronounced a failure, and even churchmen like Clarendon and Barrow criticised certain portions of it with severity."

In 1660, Herbert Thorndike published The Due Way of composing the Differences on Foot, and the following year he was appointed prebend of Westminster. As a member of the Anglican convocation during the early 1660s, he helped revised the Book of Common Prayer, and in 1662 he published Just Weights and Measures, "designed to illustrate the practical application of the theory set forth in the 'Epilogue,' [advocating] as measures of church reform, the prevention of pluralities [i.e., ministers holding more than one parish living] and the restoration of the discipline of penance. The privations he had experienced, combined with his intense application to study, brought on, at this time, a severe illness, on recovering from which he removed towards the close of 1662 to Cambridge. Here he continued to reside until driven from the university by the plague of 1666. In June 1667 he again returned to Trinity, but his acceptance a few weeks later of the tithes of Trumpington parish (valued at 80*l.* per annum) involved the surrender of his fellowship, and he accordingly retired to his canonry at Westminster, where he took up his residence in the cloisters. In 1668 his brother, John Thorndike, returned from his life of exile in New England, where he had helped found Ipswich, Massachusetts, but only to die in the November of the same year. He was accompanied by his two daughters, Alice and Martha, who now became domiciled with their uncle, and continued to reside with him until his death."

Two years before his death, Thorndike published A Discourse of the Forbearance or the Penalties which a Due Reformation requires, as well as the first part of De Ratione ac Jure finiendi Controversias Ecclesiae Disputatio. This last work was "an endeavour at recasting and producing in more methodical and finished form the argument of the 'Epilogue' and his other treatises on the same subject. He did not, however, live to carry his design to completion. In the spring of 1672 his labours were again interrupted by illness, and he retired to a kind of sanatorium rented by the [Westminster] chapter at Chiswick. He died there on 11 July 1672, at the age of seventy-four, and was interred in the east cloister of Westminster Abbey. ...

"Thorndike's position as a theologian was peculiar; and some of his views were challenged even by divines of his own school, and those too of recognised breadth of view and tolerant spirit, especially by Isaac Barrow in his posthumous tract on 'The Unity of the Church,' and by Henry More, the platonist, in his 'Antidote to Idolatry.' Although, as tested by his great criterion — the voice of scripture interpreted by the early church — the majority of the distinctive Roman tenets stood condemned, [Thorndike] appears distinctly to have countenanced the practice of prayers for the dead; and by Cardinal Newman he was regarded as the only writer of any authority in the English church who held the true catholic theory of the eucharist."[105]

His lengthy will contained the following provisions: "As for my bodie I charge my Executor to burie it betweene Doctor Nurse and my brother John Thornedike in the way from my lodgeing to the Church [i.e., Westminster Abbey] without any solemnitie of a Funerall only by the ordinarie Service the Deane and Prebends Rings of Fortie and twentie shillings the Quire ordinarie Duties and to write these words upon my Gravestone:-- *Hic jacet Corpus Herberti Thornedike Prebendary hujus Ecclesiae Qui vivus veram Reformanda Ecclesiae rationem ac modum precibusque studysque prosequebatur. 1. JOHN[1] THORNDIKE (Francis[A] Nicholas[B]), "brother to a Prebendary of this Church," was buried 3 November 1668 in Westminster Abbey, London, England, "in the East Cloister, near the steps."[119] He married before 25 December 1637,[120] ELIZABETH STRATTON, who was "aged about 26 yeares" in November 1640[121] and who was not mentioned in her husband's will of 29 July 1668,[122] daughter of John Stratton of Shotley, Suffolk, and Ardleigh, Essex, and Anne (Dearhaugh) Stratton of Bedingham, Suffolk, later of Salem, Massachusetts.[123] Elizabeth Stratton was under age at the date of her father's will (24 September 1621), and was to receive £100 from her father's estate at the age of 21.[124]

Francis Thorndike of Scamblesby, Lincolnshire, made the following bequest in his will dated 26 June 1655: "Item my will and meaninge further is that my brother John Thorndike shall have and enioy for him and his heires forever after my decease Twentie pounds a yeare out of the Rectory of great Carlton. ... And my will and meaninge is that for the non payment of the said Annuity to my brother John or his heires ... that they and every of them accordinge to their severall interests shall have full power and authoritie to distraine for their Severall Annuities and arrears thereof in or uppon the said Rectorie of great Carlton or any [of] the lands thereunto belonginge."[125]

"As for my bodie I charge my Executor to burie it betweene Doctor Nurse and my brother John Thornedike in the way from my lodgeing to the Church [i.e., Westminster Abbey] without any solemnitie of a Funerall...."[126]

John Thorndike was one of the first nine settlers of Agawam (now Ipswich), Massachusetts. At "A Court, holden at Boston, Aprill 1th, 1633,

> It is ordered, that noe p[er]son w[t]soeuer shall goe to plant or inhabitt att Aggawam, without leave from the Court, except those that [have] already gone, v[i]z[t]: M[r] John Winthrop, Jun[r], M[r] Clerke, Robte Coles, Thomas Howlett, John Biggs, John Gage, Thomas Hardy, Will[ia]m Perkins, M[r] Thornedicke, Will[ia]m S[r]ieant [Sargent].[127]

John Winthrop, Jr., sent a letter dated 24 October 1633 from Agawam to his wife, Martha (Fones) Winthrop, in Boston. In her reply, Mrs. Winthrop wrote: "Dear Loue, I receiued thy leter by Mr. Thorndick."[128] It appears that John Thorndike's future wife, Elizabeth Stratton, was living in Boston at this time, as in his letter of 24 October Winthrop had urged his wife to "send Johns shirts for he wanteth them very much, and if it be the latter end of next weeke before [William Sargent] commeth [to Agawam] then send your maide the Girle and Elzabeth Stratton, for the winter wilbe so neere now and the wether could be that it wilbe tedious for them to come by water...."[129] In the winter of the following year, John Stratton of Salem was in Boston, where he signed a letter to John Winthrop, Jr., "Soe with my service to Mrs. Winthrop and loue to my sister I Committ you to gods tuition...."[130]

The family into which John Thorndike married was of gentry origin, occupying a high station in the New World. Thorndike's brother-in-law, John Stratton, "of Shatley [sic] in the County of Suffolke gent and his Associates," were granted "Two Thousand Acres of Land butting upon the South Side of the River or Creeke called Cape Porpus" by the Plymouth Council on 1 December 1631. The following day, "There was a Pattent agreed upon for John Stratton for a propor[ti]on of Land containing 2000 acres...with all Comodityes and Privileges proper for his necessary occasions as by his said graunt more at large appeareth. The Consideration for and in respect that he had lived in New England these three yeares last past and had expended 1000 li. in transporting of cattle and maintaining of servaunts in their Imployment and for that he now purposeth to transport more cattle and to settle a plante[ti]on there according to his grant...."[131]

The Stratton grant consisted of "'2000 acres on the coast of Maine, in the vecinity of Ogunquit and Kennebunk rivers on the south side of Cape Porpoise, and an island near the mouth of the Saco River.' The island is opposite Black Point, a little west of Richmond Island, and about four miles from Old Orchard. It is still known as 'Stratton Island.'" It appears that both Scarborough and Wells, Maine, formed part of the Stratton patent.[132]

John Thorndike owned land in Salem abutting Lieutenant Francis Johnson on 25 January 1635/36; in May 1636, he "relinquished his farm on the north side of Mr. Johnson's."[133] In April 1637, John Thorndike received a new grant of one hundred acres of land, "which was formerly next to Mr. Johnson's, and was disliked by him," and on 19 June 1637, he was granted 185 acres "in the place where the town appointed him one hundred acres."[134] Lieutenant Richard Davenport received meadow land "lying of the south side of Brooksby riuer" on 25 December 1637, as well as "all that meadow that is left remayning of that w^{ch} was mowen by M^{r} ffreeman, except 12 acres to M^{r} Thorndike, 8 acres to Richard Hutchinson & 6 acres betweene ffrancis Weston & M^{r} Stileman & M^{r} Hathorne his 4 acres already laid out." As John Thorndike had formerly held meadow land at Brooksby which was now being granted to Edmund Batter, it was noted in the records of the town meeting of this date that Thorndike had consented to the regrant.[135]

Thorndike first appears in the Essex County court records in reference to his servant, "Jno. Adams," who was "whipped for running away from his m[aste]r Thorndik" on the twenty-seventh day of the seventh month [i.e., September] 1636.[136] John Stone's suit against Thorndike for "defamation" was recorded 29: 7 [September]: 1640, although no details of the suit survive.[137]

The next reference to John Thorndike appears in the extensive records concerning the various lawsuits brought by his brother-in-law, John Stratton. One day in November 1640, "Elizabeth Thorndike aged about 26 yeares wife of John Thorndike of Salem in New England gent," deposed that she had seen her mother give "two bonds or specialtyes" to her brother, John, some years before.[138]

On 10 July 1641,

> Anne Stratton of Salem in New England widdowe John Stratton of the same gent John Thorndike of the same gent and Elizabeth his wife and Dorothy Stratton of the same spinster make a letter of Attorney to Captaine Edward Gibons of Boston in N E and Robert Stileman of London merchant to demand receive and recover of and from John Thurston of Hockston in the County of Suff[olk] Esq[r] Executor of the last will & testament of M[ris] Mary Dearhaugh late of Barringham [i.e., Bedingham] in the County of Suffolke widdowe deceased mother of the said Anne Stratton and grandmother of the said John Elizabeth and Dorothy All such legacyes as are now due unto them by the said last will & Testament.[139]

On 27: 10 [December]: 1642, "Jno. Thorndike," a witness to the will of Samuel Smith, deposed that he believed the testator had "had his senses" at the time he executed the will. Another witness, "Georg Emerey," reported that Smith "had a fitt of a feaver ye day before and the vapors in his stomake caused paine in his head, and did cause trouble sleep & y[e] Last day till toward 2 of the clock [he] was very sensible."[140]

On 23 January 1642/43, Richard Gardiner and John Gardner were each granted a "ten-acre lot near Mackerel Cove, next to Mr. Thorndik's plain...."[141]

At "a meeting of the seven men" on 8 January 1643/44, "Joseph, son of George Harris, deceased, was apprenticed to John Thorndike."[142]

Franc[i]s Johnson appeared in court regarding the suit of William Pester vs. John Thorndike on 8: 5 [July]: 1645.[143] On 9: 7 [September]: 1645, "Mr.

John Thorndike served as a grand juror 29: 9 [November]: 1653 and 27: 4 [June]: 1654.[148] His signature can be found on the estate inventories of James Patch (27: 6 [August]: 1658[149]) and Robert Sallo[w]s (30: 4 [June]: 1663[150]), and as a witness to William Woodberry's will (5: 4 [June]: 1663[151]). He also served as a witness to Mordeca[i] Larcum's bond (11 June 1661[152]).

On 29: 6 [August]: 1655, Job Swinnerton was fined for his "cruel and lascivious beating"[153] of John Thorndike's eldest daughter, Anne, who became insane as a result of her treatment.

On 13 March 1655/56, the Salem selectmen granted to John Thorndike, Joshua Roots, and the other proprietors with meadow near Beaver Pond the land that each would gain by the draining of the pond, "according as it should bound upon each of their proprieties, provided they are at equal charge in the work, otherwise they that bear the charge should have the benefit."[154]

In 1665 and 1667, John Thorndike was one of the assessors appointed to set rates for the support of the Reverend John Hale, the rector at Beverly,[155] and he also served on a committee established to design "a more comfortable seating" in the meetinghouse. On 24 January 1667/68, the selectmen of Salem ordered that Thorndike should receive compensation "in land on Cape Ann Side for the highway laid out through his land to the Creek road.[156]

In Legal Executions in New England, David Allen Hearn writes: "John Proctor was openly contemptuous of the Salem witch hunt and of the so-called 'afflicted girls' in particular. He saw no reason for them to be fussed over and prayed over; what they needed, said he, was a good beating and then they would be restored to normalcy. ... On April 4, 1692, several of the 'afflicted girls' denounced Elizabeth Proctor. When it came her turn to be arraigned John Proctor made it a point to be present. Because he was a threat to the celebrity status of the 'afflicted persons' he too was denounced as a witch. ... On June 2, 1692, both of the Proctors — husband and wife — were strip-searched for marks of the devil. Nothing suspicious was found but a report to that effect did not save them. Neither was a petition signed by many persons who knew the Proctors as honest, industrious citizens. On August 5, 1692, sham trials were held. Guilty verdicts were returned against ... husband and wife. Both were sentenced to death. John Proctor managed to save his wife by getting her pregnant. She was accordingly reprieved pending the birth of their child. Her death sentence was eventually commuted. John Proctor was not so fortunate. He was hanged on August 19, 1692."[172]

SECOND GENERATION

2. CAPTAIN PAUL[2] THORNDIKE (John[1]) was baptized in Westminster Abbey, London, England 18 April 1663 ("Paul Thorndyke, a young man about 20 years of age, and Duell Pead, one of the King's scholars [presumably at Westminster School], about 16 years of age, was baptized by the Dean, publickly, in the font then newly set up")[185] and died between 6 August 1697[186] and 2 January 1698.[187] He married at Beverly, Massachusetts 28 April 1668,[188] MARY PATCH, who was born at Salem, Massachusetts 6: 2 month [April]: 1649[189] and died between November 1717 and 16 March 1718,[190] daughter of James and Hannah (Woodbury) Patch.[191]

Paul Thorndike had returned to Beverly by 1668, the year he married Mary Patch. He was chosen as one of the first five "townsmen," or selectmen, at the town meeting following the incorporation of Beverly in 1668, and served in that position again in 1671, 1673, and 1675. He was surveyor of highways in 1674, and in 1694 he was chairman of the committee appointed to settle the boundaries between Beverly and Manchester. On 24: 9 [November]: 1674, he made a return on the "law of youth."[192] He made a record at the town meeting in June 1677.[193]

He was a sergeant of the Beverly militia 10 October 1677, and was commissioned a lieutenant of the Foot Company under Captain William Dixey at Boston 11 May 1681 and a captain on 1 July 1689. He took the Oath of Fidelity 3 December 1677,[194] and was admitted a freeman of Beverly 19 May 1680,[195] taking the freeman's oath 30 November 1680.[196]

Thorndike served on the Jury of Trials in November 1670[197] and on 26: 9 [November]: 1676.[198] He represented Beverly in the town's case against Captain Fiske of Wenham on 19 May 1680.[199]

Paul Thorndike signed the inventories of the following estates: Robert Leach (June 1674[200]), Captain Thomas Lathrop of Beverly (11 November 1675[201]), Josiah Roots (3 July 1683[202]), John West (13 November 1683[203]), Richard Brackenbery (1 April 1684[204]), and Isaac Randall (23 April 1684[205]). He served as surety for Thomas Woodbery on 27: 4 [June]: 1676.[206]

On 28 November 1670, John Lambert made a complaint against Paul Thorndike's servant for "breaking up s^{d} Lambert's house staling." John Balch, aged about 16, deposed that he saw Thorndike's servant, William Barnes, "come out of his [Lambert's] house on the last day of the week which was y^{e} night before y^{e} General Trayneing at Beverly."[207]

On 22 February 1680/81, Paul Thorndyke was the first signatory to an eloquent petition to the General Court concerning a land claim:[208]

Mason or some other in his behalfe do shew vs his grant or Some Exemplification thereof whereby wee may not Know whither wee be Claimed be him or no: yet that wee may not Seeme vnto such as Suppose us to bee Comprehended to bee defective in our Alleageance, wee Add that we being many haue our seuerall perticular titles to produce Iff Robert Mason Esq[r] put vs upon it: And hee that hath but one Acre Expects A fair Legall trial for all that hee can Justly produce to plead for it: So that wee can produce quires yea Rheams of paper which wee Conceive it would be presum[p]tion in us to desire or Expect our Dread Soveraigne to bee diverted from the weighty Affairs of three Kingdoms for the hearing of: ffor we haue had Above fifty years possession, and Entered vpon the place with the good liking of the Indians the ancient Inhabitants of this Country, wee haue Adventured our liues and Estates, and worne out Much Time and strength in the subduing a wilderness, for the Increasing his Majesties dominions and Customes. And in the late warrs with the heathen haue Caried our lives in our hands to defend our possessions, with the Loss of about twelve English lives of our town, and ex[p]ended some hundreds of pounds to maintain o[u]r lands: and in All this Tyme of Aboue 50 years, neither m[r] Mason nor any for him did either take possession, or disburs Estate, or made Demand of our Lands, or Expended one penny to defend them: wee humbly Conceive his majesties Royall Justice intends not to put vs to the Charges of sending our deeds and Euidences three thousand miles before Any demand of m[r] Mason upon the place to try: at least, whether wee will own the lands his without puting vs to so much Charge: But that which wee humbly plead for is that who euer layes any Claim to our soyle his title may be tryed vpon the place by his Majesties government here: first because yo[u]r Last messengers weer in England, the Lord Chiefe justices and other did judg it equall that whoeuer Laid Claime to any Soyle within the Limits of the patent, his Title Should be Tryed by his Majesties gouernment vpon the place, and seeing his Majesty was graciously pleased to Confirm this determination and Require all parties Concerned to acquies[ce] therein, wee humbly plead the benifitt of that determination.

Secondly Our Charter giues power to the gouerno[r] and Company of the Massachusetts to make such Laws and ordinances for the good and wellfare "of the said Company and for the gouerment and ordering of the said Lands and Plantations, and People Inhabiting and to Inhabit them Same as to them from time to time shall be thought meete," now according to the Laws and Ordinances made by this Royall Authority and direction, have wee a title to plead for our Respectiue possessions humbly pleading our titles be tryed by those laws by which our lands are to bee gouerned according to our Charter.

thirdly Our gratious Soveraign was pleased by his Letter dated ffeba 15. 1660 Thus to signifie his pleasure viz "As wee Consider New England to be one of the Chiefest hauing enjoyed and grown vp in a long and Orderly Establishment so wee shall not Come behinde any of our Royall predecessors in a Just Encouragement and p[ro]tection of all our Louing Subjects there," &c Wee by this o[u]r orderly Establishment did then hold our Lands, and by the said orderly Establishment haue since those letters, Held them twenty years more, and doe humnbly desire and Expect to bee tryed by those Lawes here made, which are the means of your and our Orderly Establishment as a Branch of that Just Encouragement and Protection, which wee hope for by the gracious promise of our dread Soveraigne.

Wherefore our humble Request to this hono[re]d Court is thatt Iff Robert Mason Esq[r] pretends a title to any Lands in o[u]r possession you will bee Instrumentall in o[u]r behalf to present these our righteous please for the lands wee possess, for the just improument of o[u]r Lawfull defence before his Majesty in Councill, Interceding that his Royall care and Tendernes Expressed Toward vs his meanest subjects, may bee still Continued to Confirm our Long Enjoyed priueledges granted by his Royall highness and Royall Predecessors, And we Resolue through the grace of god with Our persons and Estates to approue ourselues his Loyall Subjects Euen to the death: praying to the throne of grace for the Choicest Blessing of heauen and Earth to bee powred upon his Royall head: And hart, and Remaine yo[u]r hono[rs] humble petitioners.

On 15 April 1690, Captain Paul Thorndike of Beverly sold two acres more or less of swamp ground in Beverly to Thomas Whittord [Whitridge?] of Beverly, carpenter, for £13.[212] On 23 January 1692[/93], Thomas Whittoridge of Beverly paid the Thorndikes £45 7*s* 6*d* in silver for 8 1/4 acres of upland swamp land.[213]

On 19 November 1690, Paul Thorndike of Beverly, yeoman, and Mary Thorndike, his wife sold a parcel of upland and meadows of about 40 acres in Beverly to William Browne of Salem, merchant, for £70.[214]

On 2 March 1693/94, Captain Paul Thorndike of Beverly sold 11 acres in the town of Beverly to Thomas Edwards of Ipswich for a valuable sum.[215] The Thorndikes sold another parcel of 4 acres more or less near Beaver Pond to Edwards on 2 June 1696.[216]

On 9 July 1695, Captain Paul Thorndike of Beverly sold Mary Woodbery 10 acres of land in Beverly, "being land formerly belonging to James Patch given by him to his daughter Mary who is now my wife," for £15 in silver.[217]

Paul Thorndike's last land transaction occurred on 6 August 1697, when he sold William Hirst of Salem 40 acres of land in Beverly, "being land with homestead of Paul Thorndike and Mary his wife."[218]

Paul Thorndike's estate was valued at £456 15*s*, and was administered by his widow and his second son, Paul, under letters of administration dated 2 January 1698. His heirs — his eldest son, John; Jonathan Biles as guardian of Herbert Thorndike; his daughters, Mary and Martha; Samuel Goold in right of his wife, Elizabeth; William Pride in right of his wife, Hannah; and his widow and son, Paul — signed articles of agreement on 3 December 1701.[219]

The Thorndike homestead on the south side of the road to Manchester was given to Mary (Patch) Thorndike in the estate distribution, while the land on the north side was given to Captain Thorndike's children. The promontory "Paul's Head," along the Beverly coast, derived its name from Captain Thorndike.

Mary (Patch) Thorndike made public profession of her faith and repentance in the First Church in Beverly and was baptized 23: 11 [January]:

On 12 May 1746, John Ober, Jr., of the District of Methuen, New Hampshire, husbandman, and Anna Ober his wife and daughter of Capt. John Thorndike of Beverly and Christian his wife, sold John Lovet, Jr., of Beverly, husbandman, a moiety of one half in quantity and quality after decease of our honored father Capt. John Thorndike, of 6 acres in Beverly, purchased by our mother which belonged in reversion to Thomas West purchased of our father. Mary was the wife of the said Lovet.[275]

John Thorndike of Beverly, gentleman, for love and affection for my grandson Nicholas Thorndike, son of my son Herbert Thorndike, late of Beverly, mariner, deceased, gave Nicholas 100 poles of land in Beverly, part of my homestead, 11 April 1751.[276]

Administration of John Thorndike's estate was given to John Thorndike on 14 April 1760, when Abigail Thorndike, the widow, declined to take adminstration of her husband's estate.[277] The inventory showed real estate valued at £301 and personal estate of £92 on 28 April 1760. Captain John Thorndike presented the settlement of real estate on 13 March 1761, with one third to the widow. As the remaining two thirds could not be divided without prejudice, Isaac Thorndike, grandson of late John Thorndike, and Joseph Rea, who had married a granddaughter of the late John Thorndike, were to make a settlement with Robert Thorndike, eldest son of the deceased John Thorndike; Joanna Lovett, wife of Ebenezer Lovett; James Thorndike; Sarah Thorndike, wife of Joshua Thorndike; Anna Douglas wife of Thomas Douglas; legal representatives of Herbert Thorndike, legal representatives of Mary, late wife of John Lovett; and Jerusha and Lydia (married daughters of Paul[4] Thorndike).

Isaac Thorndike, mariner, Joseph Rea, cordwainer, John Lovett, yeoman and Nicholas Thorndike, mariner, all of Beverly, signed on 16 March 1761 and were bound for the settlement of the estate. The final account was made on 12 October 1761.

Overseers Samuel Balch, Sr., Paul Thorndike, John Lovett, Jr., and John Ober, all of Beverly, sold land of Patience Woodbery, a single woman, person non compos mentis, to John Conant on 15 March 1722/23.[311]

Paul Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, sold 16½ acres of upland in Beverly for £60 in silver to John Stone of Beverly on 5 December 1701.[312]

Paul Thorndike and John Thorndike, with their wives Mary and Joanna, of Beverly, sold an upland and meadow at Beaver Pond of 10 acres, more or less, bounded by Herbert and Martha Thorndike and William Pride and Martha Thorndike for £40 silver to William Eliot of Beverly, cordwainer, on 1 June 1703.[313]

Paul Thorndike of Beverly, husbandman, sold upland swamp totaling 2 acres, 45 poles, to John Ober of Beverly, mariner, for £22 15*s* good payable money on 1 December 1713.[314]

Paul Thorndike and John Thorndike, both of Beverly, yeomen, each paid £10 to Thomas West, senior, of Beverly, yeoman, for about 10 acres of upland and swamp in the township of Manchester (from the division of commons in 1699) on 29 April 1712.[315]

Paul Thorndike's will, signed 20 December 1741 and presented 29 March 1742, named his loving wife Mary Thorndike; his son Josiah Thorndike was to receive £30; other sons—Josiah, Jonathan, Paul, Joshua, Zacheries, Benjamin, Andrew, Joseph, and Israel—and daughter Mary, wife of Samuel Foster, were named. His widow and Jonathan Thorndike were executors. The inventory, dated 12 April 1742, listed assets worth £231 15*s* 7*d.* Jonathan signed an account of adminstration on 3 November 1746.[316]

On 6 June 1743, for £9 8*s* 9*d*, Josiah Thorndike, husbandman, Paul Thorndike, mariner, Jonathan Thorndike, housewright, Benjamin Thorndike, mariner, all of Beverly, sold Joshua Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, 4/9 part of ½ of the dwelling house in Beverly, part of the estate

Beverly known as Mackrel Cove, 7/30th part of the pasture excluding land for the feeding of two cowes for the poor of Beverly forever, for £ 28 10*s* to John Thorndike, Jr., of Beverly, cordwinder, on 18 July 1727.[461]

Robert Warren of Manchester, Essex Co., fisherman, sold John Thorndike, Jr., of Beverly, innholder, the right or share in land granted by the General Court to Capt. William Rayment in 1690, being 1/63, my share as a soldier in that Canada Expedition, for £6 on 16 March 1735.[462]

On 29 March 1736 (sic), for £7, Thomas Pittman, fisherman, and his wife Sarah, of Manchester, sold John Thorndike, Jr. of Beverly, innholder, a 1/63 share on Piscataquay River granted in 1735 to Captain William Rayment for his 1690 expedition. The Pittmans were heirs of their brother William Dennis, a soldier in that expedition.[463] On 1 March 1736, for £80, John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, sold Hugh Montgomery, gentleman, and Robert Campbell, innholder, both of Londonderry, New Hampshire, two shares in a tract granted by the General Court of the Province of Massachusetts Bay in 1735 to Captain William Raymond and others, soldiers in the Canada Expedition of 1690. Each 1/63 share was part of the whole township, excepting 300 acres granted to Robert Hale and one right entered to Robert Warren who conveyed to me. Other right Thomas Pittman and Sarah, his wife, for their brother, William Dennis, deceased.[464]

Anna Ober of Beverly, widow, adminstrator of the estate of Hezekiah Ober, Jr., of Beverly, mariner, sold John Thorndike, Jr., of Beverly, innholder, a certain messuage or tenement in Beverly for £174 on 17 January 1740.[465]

John Thorndike, Jr., Beverly, innholder, sold a certain messuage to Samuel Foster of Beverly, mariner, for £100 on 25 August 1741.[466]

For £6, Benjamin Ober of Beverly, mariner, sold John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, 1/9 part of the thirds of his mother Anna Ober, widow of Hezekiah Ober, on 23 December 1752.[467] Nine years later, on 13 November 1761, John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, acquired for £6 all reversion and remainder of 1/9 part of the thirds of dower which was set off to Ann Ober, widow and relict of Hezekiah Ober of Beverly, intestate. The ninth part of said third being same which I bought of Benjamin Ober of Beverly, mariner.[468]

John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, and Elizabeth, his wife, sold 80 poles of land in Beverly (including dwelling house and barn) with the right of redemption to Benjamin Lovitt of Beverly for £20 on 8 July 1760.[469]

In his will signed 17 April 1769 and presented 8 August 1769, John Thorndike left his daughters Judith Hilton and Anna Wallas 5*s* and what he had heretofore given them; and his daughters Betty Wiggins and Hepzibah Baker £13 6*s* 8*d* and what he had heretofore given them. Larkin Thorndike, shoreman and sole executor, was to receive the remainder. Witnesses were Herbert Nichols, John Nichols and Sam[ue]l Goodridge.[470]

On 20 September 1769, Joseph Baker of Bradford, Essex Co., and Hephzibah, his wife, sold Larkin Thorndike of Beverly, shoreman, land from the estate of Hezekiah Ober, deceased, an heir of my wife's honored mother, Elizabeth, the late wife of my wife's father, John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, deceased, for £3 9*s* 10*d*. The said Elizabeth was the daughter of Hezekiah Ober.[471]

Winthrop Wiggin, laborer, and wife Betty of Newmarket, New Hampshire, sold Larkin Thorndike, innholder,1/7 of about 1 1/4 acres lying in Beverly in joint tenancy with Larkin Thorndike and others for £5 2*s* on 18 July 1770.[472] John Wallis, mariner, wife Anna, and Judith Hilton, widow, all of Beverly, sold Larkin Thorndike, innholder of Beverly, 2/7 of about 1 1/4 acre in Beverly held in joint tenancy and common by us and the said Larkin Thorndike on 10 April 1771 for £13 6*s* 8*d*. This is all our right that descended to Judith and Anna as heirs of our mother, now deceased and late the wife of John Thorndike of Beverly, innholder, deceased.[473]

there 29 February 1796,[541] daughter of Nicholas and Abigail (Conant) Ober. She married, secondly, at Beverly 7 October 1747,[542] her husband's first cousin PAUL[4] THORNDIKE (see No. 12); thirdly, at Beverly 17 June 1756,[543] Benjamin Edwards, who was probably born at Wenham 25 June 1727[544] and died there 2 October 1774,[545] son of Benjamin and Abigail (Lamson) Edwards; and, fourthly, at Beverly 14 November 1776,[546] Isaac Gray, who was baptized at Beverly 25 June 1710[547] and buried there 18 July 1802,[548] son of Isaac and Rebecca (Woodberry) Gray.

John Stephens, his wife Abigail, and Robert Stone of Beverly, yeoman, and wife Elizabeth Stone sold Herbert Thorndike, Jr., of Beverly a certain messuage of 12 acres and 104 poles in Beverly conveyed to us by William Pride and Hannah his wife on 20 May 1723 for £278.[549]

Robert Woodberry, gentlemen, and Mary his wife sold land to Herbert Thorndike, Jr., for £400 on 9 August 1742.[550]

Gideon Baker of Worcester, Worcester Co., joiner, sold Herbert Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, 5 ½ acres of upland and swamp land in Beverly for £20 on 24 April 1742.[551]

Herbert Thorndike, Jr., of Beverly, mariner, with consent of Abigail my wife, sold 12 acres and 104 poles of orchard, tillage and pasture land in Beverly for £292 to Isaac Woodbury of Beverly, mariner, on 16 August 1745.[552]

Abigail Thorndike, widow, was appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband Herbert Thorndike, Jr., deceased, on 11 August 1746. The estate was divided on 10 August 1761 among Nicholas Thorndike, his son; Joanna Standley, wife of William Standley; Sarah Sewall, wife of Dominicus Sewall; Abigail Davison, wife of Josiah Davison; Emma Thorndike; and Bethia Thorndike, all sisters of the said Nicholas Thorndike. On 20 May 1751, Abigail Thorndike filed an additional account dealing with the estate of her husband Herbert Thorndike, late of Beverly, deceased, intestate.[553]

In his will, dated 7 January 1788 and proved 3 March 1788,[554] Nicholas Thorndike, son of Herbert, mentions "my mother Thorndike now Gray." The record of her fourth marriage, that to Isaac Gray, calls her "Mrs. Abigail Edwards," a fact which, combined with her age at death, clearly establishes the four marriages given.

On 17 May 1797, Joseph Wood, court official, sold Jeremiah Thorndike land "formerly estate of Herbert Thorndike to his widow then Abigail Thorndike, dower of Abigail Thorndike, deceased, set off to her out of estate of Herbert." Heirs of Osman Trask are also mentioned.[555] Joseph Wood, court official, sold estate of Nicholas Thorndike to Benjamin Thorndike on 29 May 1797. The dower of Abigail Gray, deceased, was mentioned, as was Jeremiah Thorndike.[556]

William Standly, yeoman, and Joanna Standly in her right; John Conant, yeoman, Emma Conant, his wife, in her right, of Beverly; and Abigail Stewart of Kinsington, Rockingham Co., New Hampshire, widow, spinster, sold Jeremiah Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, sold all their share in the estate of their father Herbert Thorndike of Beverly, that was set off to our mother Abigail Thorndike, for her right of dower, (e.g.) dwelling house, other buildings with 6 acres and 118 poles of land bounded by land of heirs of Nicholas Thorndike, deceased, and land of Rea Thorndike, on 24 September 1796 for $180.[557]

11. JOSIAH[4] THORNDIKE (Paul[3–2] John[1]) was born at Beverly, Massachusetts 23 October 1704[588] and was buried there 24 March 1773.[589] He married (intention at Beverly 9 June 1734),[590] ANNA LEAVITT, who was living 6 April 1773 and perhaps was buried at Beverly 27 August 1778, aged sixty-four years,[591] daughter of Daniel and Abigail (—) Leavitt of Stratham, New Hampshire.

The wife of Josiah Thorndike came to the Lord's Table on 15 July 1744.[592]

The will of Daniel Leavitt of Stratham made 14 May 1737, names his wife Abigail, his daughter Anne Thorndike and "my son-in-law Josiah Thorndike," to whom he bequeathes "all my Right in the two acres of land he bought of my ... son John Leavit in ... stratham."[593]

George Tuck of Beverly, yeoman, and wife Mary sold 4 acres in Beverly for £40 paid by Josiah Thorndike of Beverly on 21 April 1755. Josiah's mortgage on the transaction was paid off on 14 September 1759.[594]

Josiah Thorndike of Beverly, yeoman, and wife Anne sold 135 poles of tillage land in Beverly for £10 2*s* 6*d* to Joshua Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, on 20 April 1771.[595]

Administration of the estate of Josiah Thorndike, "late of Beverly, mariner, deceased," was granted on 6 April 1773 to his son-in-law Hazadiah Smith, housewright, with sureties Joseph Wood, gentleman, and Nicholas Thorndike, gentleman, of Beverly. The division was between his widow Anna and "Anna Smith, only child of said deceased," each receiving £6 1/2 on 4 May 1773.[596]

Rebecca, wife of Jonathan Thorndike, "came to the Lord's Table" on 3 December 1732; Jonathan Thorndike was admitted to full Communion on 11 January 1736.[629]

Bond of Adminstration to Rebeckah Thorndike, widow, Isaac Woodberry, gentleman, Caleb Dodge, cooper, all of Beverly, for Jonathan Thorndike, housewright, intestate. The inventory, dated 26 November 1750, totalled £61; papers dealing with the account and widow's dower were dated 24 May 1751. Guardianship and estate administration papers made out to Rebeckah Thorndike alias Corral were dated 9 December 1754.[630]

Joshua Thorndike of Jaffrey, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire, and Rebecca his wife relinquished all right and claim to Rebecca's part of her (unnamed) father's estate, of Beverly, for £10 received from Elizabeth Starret of Francistown, Hillsborough Co., New Hampshire, on 19 March 1787.[631] On 5 January 1797 David Starret of Francistown, Esq., and wife Elizabeth, and Sarah Thorndike, Beverly, spinster, sold all their interest in the real estate of Jonathan Thorndike, housewright, Beverly, in Beverly in three pieces totaling about eight acres more or less, and some common land, for $211.20 paid by Mark Mors of Beverly, mariner.[632] Mary Woodberry, spinster, Lucy Woodberry, spinster, Nabby Woodberry, spinster, Elisha Woodberry, mariner, Thomas Woodberry, mariner and Rebeccah Woodberry, spinsters, all of Beverly, sold one undivided 1/8 part of the real estate of Jonathan Thorndike, housewright, which falls to us by way of our mother, Lucy Woodberry, daughter of Jonathan Thorndike, for $52.80 paid by Mark Mors, Beverly, mariner, on the same date.[633]

Ebenezer Lovett of Beverly, bricklayer, and wife Molly in her own right and Isaac Smith of Beverly, yeoman, and Susanna his wife sold all their 1/8 undivided interest in real estate of their grandfather Jonathan Thorndike (tillage land in Beverly, about eight acres in four pieces) on 4 March 1797 to Mark Morse of Beverly, mariner, for $53.20.[634]

On 26 August 1797, Andrew Lovett of Yarmouth, Shelburne County, Nova Scotia, yeoman, and Lydia Lovett, his wife, appointed Miahiall Woodbury of Essex Co., yeoman, to be our attorney to sell and dispose of pieces or parcels of land in Essex Co., part of the estate of Jonathan Thorndike, late of Essex Co.[635] Andrew Lovett of Yarmouth and Lydia his wife in her own right, sold in common and undivided with other heirs of

On 15 March 1754 Andrew Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, Anne, his wife and the daughter of Luke Morgan, late of Beverly, mariner, sold their claim to their father Morgan's estate for £18 received of William Morgan of Beverly, mariner.[685]

Anna Thorndike, Noah Cresey, yeoman, and Jonathan Hart, mariner, all of Beverly, posted a bond of administration on Andrew Thorndike of Beverly, intestate, on 14 October 1765. Noah Cressy, Robert Roundy and William Ober were the committee to appraise Andrew Thorndike's estate. Real estate £168 5*s*; personal estate £53 1*s* 4*d*, included two guns, a cutlass, coffee mill, Bible, and other books on 17 October 1765. His heirs on 6 April 1773 were Anna Dodge and others: Joseph, Paul, Israel, Andrew, Anna, and Mary Thorndike.[686]

Joseph Thorndike, of Jeffrey, County of Chester, New Hampshire, yeoman, released all his claim to the estate of his father Andrew Thorndike, late of Beverly, mariner, except that left to his widow, for £35 6*s* 8*d* paid by Noah Creasy, for my brother Israel Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, said Cressy guardian for Israel, on 28 November 1774. Joseph's wife Sarah consented.[687]

An old tradition in the family says that Andrew Thorndike, a mariner, had always wanted daughters, his first five children being sons, and that the night his twin daughters, Anna and Mary, were born, his ship was lost in sight of Beverly as she sailed into the harbor and he perished with others of her crew.[688]

21. ISAAC[5] THORNDIKE (Paul[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Beverly, Massachusetts 21 June 1731[784] and was buried there 16 October 1779.[785] He married before 26 August 1764,[786] ELIZABETH MERRILL, who was born about 1745 and died at Beverly 24 November 1814 in her seventieth year.[787]

On 3 November 1765, the wife of Isaac Thorndike came to the Lord's Table.[788]

William Browne, Joseph Blaney of Salem, gentleman, and wife Abigail sold about 5 acres in Beverly for £63 6*s* 8*d* to Samuel Foster, mariner, and Isaac Thorndike, mariner, of Beverly. Also Epes Sargent, Esq., of Salem, and his wife Catherine consented and relinquished her dower right on 27 November 1759.[789]

Administration of the estate of Isaac Thorndike of Beverly, cordwainer, deceased, was granted to Elizabeth Thorndike, his widow, with Joseph Wood, gentleman, and Cornelius Woodberry, cordwainer, as sureties, on 6 November or December 1779. An inventory dated 9 July 1783 showed real estate of about 27 acres in multiple parcels valued at £416, which included 1/4 part of real estate of Paul Thorndike, deceased, and half of two pews in the meeting house; and personal estate of £298 14*s* 2*d*; three cows and one heifer were part of the personal estate.[790] On 11 February 1797, Isaac Thorndike, goldsmith, Elizabeth Thorndike, milliner, Abner Chapman, goldsmith, and Lydia his wife in her own right, and Anna Thorndike, singlewoman, all of Beverly and heirs of Isaac Thorndike, and Elizabeth Thorndike, widow, for $200 quitclaimed 3 acres more or less—their interests in property inherited from Isaac Thorndike—to Jeffrey Thissell of Beverly, yeoman.[791]

A similar and consecutive document identified Anna Thorndike as a milliner, when the same persons for £15 transferred 4 acres to Jeffrey Thissell of Beverly, yeoman.[792]

Children, born at Beverly, Massachusetts:[793]

From "Memorandums" written by Dr. William Thorndike of Milford, Clermont County, Ohio:[916]

"9th November 1815 my honored father Paul Thorndike died at Dunstable, Massachusetts aged 74 years his disease was influenza. [I]n his person he was of the middling stature and though rather lean was well built and remarkably athletic even to a very short time previous to his Death. [H]e had dark eyes and hair a very expressive countenance. He was a religious person and died in the full assurance of a blessed immortality.

"Olive Thorndike my honored mother died on the 19th April 1816 of the dopsy aged 68. She was of large size and corpulent, of fair complexion brown hair. She was well bred had a competent share of learning and was remarkably social. She died in the full assurance of a happy immortality through the merits of the Savior."

According to the Dictionary of American Biography, Israel Thorndike—later one of the richest men in America—"does not seem to have been born to much in the way of material possessions, for his lack of education is noted by his contemporaries."[1047] He had already spent some time at sea when he commanded the privateers Warren and Resource in his early twenties: "As the harbor of Salem and Beverly was not controlled by the British during the Revolution, he was able to make valuable captures with these and other ships; and at the close of hostilities to keep vessels in operation at a time when American shipping was practically reduced to the Salem-Beverly fleet."[1048] With his brother-in-law, Moses Brown, he founded the shipping firm of Brown and Thorndike, which "took a very conspicuous part in the trade with China and the Orient that originated in Salem and later expanded from Boston. Before [Thorndike] was thirty-five years of age his part in the Revolution, his financial prominence, and his personal influence made him one of the leading men in the state."

Israel Thorndike was first elected to the state legislature from Beverly in 1788; after he moved to Boston in 1810, "he was already so well known [there] that he was elected to the state Senate from his new constituency in 1812." In all, he was elected thirteen times to the legislature, seven times as a representative, six times as a senator. Thorndike was also a member of the constitutional conventions of 1788 and 1820, and he served as a presidential elector in 1812 and 1816. In Boston, "he continued his extensive business with the Orient, invested largely in manufacturing and other business enterprises, and his mansion became a political and social center. One of his dinner-parties in 1812 was renowned because the famous 'Gerrymander' drawing that gave a new word to the English language was exhibited at his home soon after its origin."

"The small town of Thorndike, Waldo County, Maine, still part of Massachusetts before 1820, was incorporated and named after Israel[5] Thorndike in 1819. Originally it was part of a tract of land given to General Knox for his services during the Revolutionary War.... Some time later, the land was divided into plots and sold under the Proprietors Plan. Israel Thorndike, David Sears and William Prescott became the Proprietors. In 1806 Israel used his land to start a 'Great Farm' for imported Hereford cattle, Merino sheep, and an apple orchard of 500 trees. As a gesture of gratitude for the honor of having the town change its name to Thorndike, he gave $500 for the support of schools, the town to raise an equal amount each year."[1049]

In 1818, Israel Thorndike purchased the Ebeling library of Hamburg for Harvard College. His biographer in the Dictionary of American Biography notes drily that "as this was his largest public gift, although he left an estate of $1,500,00, and the outlay [for the library] was only $6,500, he cannot be considered a pioneer in philanthropy, but he was a sturdy patriot in the Revolution, and he influenced the economic development and politics of Massachusetts for the first half-century of independence.

"His oratory was more conspicuous for its substance than its form, but his mastery of fact was often made use of by legislative colleagues of more eloquence for whom he collected material."[1050]

Lavinia M. Snow recalled in 1896 that "My great grandfather Ebenezer Thorndike after he was past 80 rode horseback from here [Rockland] to Boston to visit him [Israel Thorndike]. When a boy he [Israel] lived in the family of Ebenezer's sister Lucy who married Col. Joseph Wallace."[1051]

March 1758[1124] and died there 9 December 1838,[1125] son of Nathan and Anna (Herrick) Leach.

Andrew Thorndike served on the brigantine Tyrannicide (a privateer of which his brother, Israel, had formerly been first mate[1126]) under the command of Captain Jonathan Haraden between 26 February and 29 August 1777. Three years later, he was the second mate of the Resource, commanded by Captain Israel Thorndike. In a list of officers and crew, dated at Beverly 21 June 1780, he was described as aged 21 years; stature 5' 6"; complexion, dark; residence, Beverly. On 11 September 1780, under the command of Captain Richard Ober of the Resource, Andrew Thorndike was aged 27 years; stature, 5' 7"; complexion, dark; residence, Beverly.[1127]

Andrew Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, with consent of wife Ruth, sold four acres more or less in Beverly to Joseph Rea of Beverly, gentleman, for £62 on 12 January 1785.[1128] On the same date, Andrew Thorndike, mariner, with wife Ruth, sold a dwelling house and about 1/2 acre in Beverly, bounded in part by Josiah Thorndike, deceased, for £90 to Amos Fuller of Beverly, carpenter.[1129] Fuller and his wife, Judith, sold a dwelling house and about 1/2 acre land in Beverly, being the same house and land that Andrew Thorndike aforesaid conveyed to me with deed 12 January 1785 with right to repay, for £36 14*s* 6*d* to Andrew Thorndike on 10 March 1787.[1130] On 9 December 1791, Ruth Thorndike, sole heir to the estate of Andrew Thorndike, acknowledged payment in full from Amos Fuller.[1131]

Andrew Thorndike of Beverly, mariner, and Ruth his wife sold a piece of mowing and tillage land in Beverly of 9 acres more or less all fenced with a stone wall as well as one piece of pasture land in Beverly on Paul's Point of about 3 acres bounded southerly by the sea and Ober's Cover to Samuel Foster of Beverly, mariner, on 18 May 1785 for £165.[1132]

Ruth Thorndike of Beverly, widow, sold 3/4 part of real estate of her brother Daniel Batchelder, late of Beverly, mariner, to Josiah Batchelder, Jr., Esq., for £22 on 23 June 1792.[1133] Ruth Thorndike of Beverly, widow, sold Josiah a further three pieces of land in Beverly on 12 April 1794 for £78.[1134]

(Lufkin) Lovett. She married, secondly, at Beverly 16 November 1817,[1443] Captain Mark Knowlton of Beverly and Boston, Massachusetts.[1444]

Freeborn Thorndike, mariner, late of Beverly, died intestate. The inventory of his estate was dated 2 November 1812. His real estate consisted of about 30 poles of land in Beverly, a dwelling house, barn, and outbuildings, valued at $1,000.00.; the personal estate was valued at $353.03 and included two Brehama tea pots and 20 cane back chairs.[1445]

Children:

i. NANCY[7] THORNDIKE, b. in 1807; bur. at Beverly 22 or 27 Nov. 1808 aged 1 year.[1446]

ii. ANDREW THORNDIKE, b. in July 1809; d. at Beverly 17 Nov. 1809 aged 4 months.[1447]

iii. NANCY THORNDIKE, "lived 2 years."[1448]

61. JOSEPH[6] THORNDIKE (Joseph[5] Andrew[4] Paul[3–2] John[1]) was baptized at Beverly, Massachusetts 24 January 1773.[1449] He married, but the name of his wife has not been found.

Joseph Thorndike appeared on the Tax List of Jaffrey, New Hampshire, in 1795 and 1796,[1450] and is said to have been "of Whitestown, N.Y.," in 1797. A family account[1451] says that he finally settled in Pennsylvania and was not heard of until about 1815, when he visited relatives at Claremont, New Hampshire. Afterwards he saw them in Ohio and stated the he had married and had several children, giving their names.

In the 1820 Census, Joseph Thorndyke was listed in Lamar township, Centre County, Pennsylvania, in a household with one male over 45 years of [1451]Letter from Henry D. Sawyer: "He was displeased at his father's 2d marriage and left home and [was] unheard from until about 1815 when he visited my grandmother in Claremont, N.H. He afterwards visited her in Ohio. He told her he had married and settled in Pennsylvania. Had children and gave names; my mother was but 10 years old. She forgot the children's names and where he lived. So anxious was my mother to obtain some trace of his family that I being 3 months in Philadelphia in the fall of 1864 and meeting many Pa. soldiers from all sections of the state carefully question[ed] them as to whether they knew of any person of that name in their vicinity."

age and one female 26–45 years of age.[1452] In 1830, Joseph Thorndike was listed in Lawrence township in neighboring Clearfield County, Pennsylvania. The household contained one male 50–59 years of age and two females, one 50–59 years of age and one 5–9 years of age.[1453]

62. ANDREW[6] THORNDIKE (Joseph[5] Andrew[4] Paul[3–2] John[1]) was born at Jaffrey, New Hampshire 19 March 1778[1454] and died at Buenos Aires, Argentina 13 June 1840.[1455] He married MARY BIXBY, who was born at Framingham, Massachusetts 23 November 1777 and died at Livermore, Maine 7 November 1833,[1456] daughter of Nathan and Martha (Twitchell) Bixby of Dublin, New Hampshire.[1457]

Andrew Thorndike was for a time associated in business with his father at Jaffrey, but turned to the sea for his livelihood and is said to have had large commercial interests at Barcelona, Spain, where his marriage record places him as a resident in or about 1806. He also was largely interested in shipping at Buenos Aires, of which city he was a resident at the time of his decease. Family accounts say the Spanish government levied heavily on his fortune and that his son George H. Thorndike went to Buenos Aires in an attempt to recover as much as possible of the sum taken, a mission in which he was partially successful; and it was while he was en route to Barcelona on a similar mission some months later that he met his death at sea as a passenger on the President in 1841.

Andrew Thorndike, an American citizen and merchant of Barcelona, gave power of attorney to Mr. Israel Thorndike of Boston.

Thorndike), Ohio 22 March 1831.[1461] He married, first, 12 May 1813, HARRIET DUSTIN of Claremont, New Hampshire, who was born 24 June 1791 and died at Brimfield 22 December 1824, daughter of Dr. Moody and Alice (Kingsbury) Dustin;[1462] and, secondly, at Claremont 3 August 1826,[1463] LUCY ANNE SUMNER, who was born there 22 March 1809 and died at Milwaukee, Wisconsin 21 December 1839, daughter of John Henry and Hannah (Fitch) Sumner.[1464] She married, secondly, in 1836, David Finley of Michigan City, Indiana.[1465]

Henry Thorndike graduated from Dartmouth College in 1809,[1466] studied law at Claremont, and entered upon the practice of his profession at Boston, Massachusetts, where he remained for two years, returning in 1813 to New Hampshire and making his home there for three years.[1467] However, the lure of the "Western Country" proved too much for him and he removed to Ohio, settling at what was first called Thorndike after Hon. Israel Thorndike, who had extensive land investments there. The town later became Brimfield and here Henry Thorndike not only practiced law, but ran an iron foundry.[1468]

She married, secondly, a Mr. Andrews by whom she had several children.

Israel Thorndike, as he was usually known in Brimfield, was employed by his uncle, Israel Thorndike of Beverly, Massachusetts, in 1812 and 1813, and placed in command of the brig Hazyard [sic] at New Orleans, Louisiana. His ship laden with cotton and other products of the South, he sailed for Havana, Barcelona, and other foreign ports, bringing back sundry goods from the countries visited.[1479]

In 1816 Israel Augustus Thorndike, in company with John Wyles, Jr., of Brimfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, went out to the "Reserve" to inspect their large holdings, mainly in the region later known as Thorndike in honor of the former. Because of its swampy location the settlement had first been known as Swamptown; next, the large number of bears frequenting the land caused it to be called Beartown, and later it took on the name of Greenbrier. From Greenbrier the name was changed to Wylestown as a tribute to Israel Thorndike's associate and companion on the trip, John Wyles, Jr. At the organization of the town in 1818 it was the understanding that Mr. Thorndike was to donate a large tract for a public square, in commemoration of which gift the authorities decided to change the name again, this time to Thorndike, but because of some misunderstanding the donation failed to materialize. As a result the citizens petitioned to make one more change, this time of Brimfield, after the former home of John Wyles. That name still clings to the town. It is said that about 1817, Israel Thorndike, anxious for a speedy settlement of his township, offered to present eighty acres to the first white child born within its borders. One Alpheus Andrews, a good deacon, hearing of this liberal offer prompty appeared on the scene with his household which he had ample reason to believe would shortly be increased. On 17 April 1818, the anticipated arrival in his family made its appearance, but its life was presumably of too brief a duration to count, for a compromise was effected and he recieved forty acres instead of the coveted eighty. It was to this primitive settlement in an almost unbroken wilderness, inhabited principally by wild beasts, that Israel Thorndike was sent in November 1816 as agent. He thus became one of the early settlers of that part of Ohio and lived there until his death.[1480]

"For twenty years both in private practice and in the hospital, [Dr. Thorndike] did an enormous number of operations, surgical, gynaecological, obstetrical, and opthalmic. An enumeration would be tedious and we will allude only to the [unusual] ones. He tied the internal iliac artery, behind the peritoneum, for secondary haemorrhage from a perforation wound, and the patient lived to attend the funeral of his surgeon. He tied the external iliac artery for primary haemorrhage from a stab, with success. He tied the gluteal artery at its emergence from the sciatic notch for a traumatic aneurism in the nates. In this he boldly imitated Bell, who so graphically describes the rush of blood and clots and the difficulty of seizing the vessel. He removed a cobblestone, five inches by three, and weighing two pounds[,] from the peritoneal cavity, with success. In this remarkable case the patient had inserted the stone into his rectum[;] thence it had ulcerated through the rectum and colon into the peritoneum. Dr. Thorndike passed his hand into the rectum but the stone escaped beyond his reach. He then opened the peritoneal cavity by an incision five inches long, parallel to the rectus muscle[,] and removed the stone. The patient recovered.

"He opened the gall bladder and removed calculi by incision.

"Among the surgical feats he prized most were two operations for evacuating pus from a retro-peritoneal abscess near the caecum. The symptoms in this first case were constitutional more than local but very tense. He made the incision to tie the iliac artery, push[ed] back the peritoneum, found a mass of induration in the iliac fossa, plunged in a trocar[,] and was rewarded by evacuating pus and the perfect recovery of his patient. Most of these operations were done before the days of antiseptic surgery. The removal of Meckels ganglion for neuralgia, amputation at the hip joint, many lithotomies, Cock's operation for perineal section, which he valued highly, many large tumors, might be added to the list. He also had practiced every operation of modern gynaecology, except Batty's operation.

"A large, continuous and exacting private practice gradually wore him out; but his constitution was also sapped by a poisonous wound three years ago. He sank rapidly under a double pneumonia and died in forty-three hours from the primary chill, apparently unconscious of suffering."

By 1919, Captain George Larkin Thorndike's bequest in memory of his brother had reached (with interest) $200,000, and the trustees of the Boston City Hospital added a loan appropriation of another $150,000. Dr. Francis Weld Peabody was named the first director of the Thorndike Laboratory, a research institute, on 1 July 1921.[1899] The Thorndike Memorial Hospital of Boston City Hospital was dedicated 15 November 1923. Among the ("BETSEY")[7] THORNDIKE, who was born there 28 January 1788[1912] and died at Medford, Massachusetts before 16 November 1841,[1913] daughter of Henry[6] and Elizabeth (Batchelder) Thorndike (see No. 47). She married, secondly, at Charlestown, Massachusetts 28 July 1824,[1914] George Goodridge, who died before 8 April 1833.

Nicholas Thorndike, aged 18 years, son of Osman Thorndike, was credited with personal property of Eleanor Thorndike left by his grandfather Lovett as a note from Emma Lovett. Credit, $3,636.41; debit $404.42.[1915]

Betsy Thorndike, widow, principal, Pyam Lovett and Mark Knowlton, mariners, sureties, all of Beverly, appointed administratrix of estate of Nicholas Thorndike, Jr., mariner, on 17 August 1819. All children are minors. She was authorized to pay 1/3 of her late husband's estate to herself and 1/3 to each child, Henry Osmond Thorndike and Emmeline Augusta Thorndike, on 2 October 1821. On the same date, Betsy Thorndike was appointed guardian of Henry Osmond Thorndike, 10, and Emeline Augusta Thorndike, 5, minors, children of Nicholas Thorndike, Jr., late of Beverly, mariner. Betsey Thorndike, Beverly, principal with Nathan Lynde, chairmaker, and Silas Dickney [sic], trader, both of Charlestown, sureties. Clemantine Thorndike witness to signatures of the two men. Inventories on 1 January 1822 for each child.

As Betsey was dead on 16 November 1841, Edward Thorndike, de bonis nom, was appointed administrator. Final item 4 January 1842.[1916]

Children, born at Beverly, Massachusetts:[1917]

115. WILLIAM[7] THORNDIKE (Nicholas[6–5] Herbert[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Beverly, Massachusetts 22 January 1795 and died there 12 July 1835.[1920] He married at Beverly 8 November 1821,[1921] ANNA ("NANCY") STEPHENS, who was born there 5 February 1797[1922] and died at Bath, Maine 5 June 1823,[1923] daughter of John and Sarah (Davis) Stephens, and sister of Thomas Stephens, who married his sister Mehitable (see No. 57).

William Thorndike prepared for college under Dr. Benjamin Abbott of Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire, and graduated with distinction from Harvard College at the age of eighteen; he then studied law and was admitted to the Bar in 1816.[1924] For a time he practiced law in Bath, but at his wife's death he returned to Beverly and engaged in commercial pursuits. Though of a retiring disposition, his natural abilities and engaging manner soon led him into public life and he held many important town offices. From 1828 to 1832 he served as senator for Essex County and in 1832 was President of the Senate. In 1832 he was elected President of the National Insurance Company and later of the Hamilton National Bank of Boston.[1925]

A man of deep religious convictions, he was a member of the First Parish Church of Beverly and for years superintendent of its Sunday School.

After his father's death, George H. Thorndike went to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to contest that Government's action in confiscating most, if not all, of his father's large possessions in that country. He succeeded in recovering a large portion of the estate and set sail for the United States en route to Spain, where he planned to contest also the confiscation of his father's properties and money in Barcelona. He sailed from New York for Liverpool 11 March 1841, on the steamer President, one of the staunchest and finest ships of the time, but from the day of her sail not a word was ever heard of her twenty-seven passengers and her crew of ninety-four, nor

128. CHARLES[7] THORNDIKE (Augustus[6] Israel[5] Andrew[4] Paul[3–2] John[1]) was born at Boston, Massachusetts 24 June 1834[1985] and died there of influenza 8 April 1910.[1986] He married at Paris, France 24 June 1862,[1987] MARY EDMONDSON EDGAR, who was born at Baltimore, Maryland 19 July or 7 August 1836 and died at Boston of influenza 9 April 1910[1988] (the day following her husband's death), daughter of Herman Le Roy and Elizabeth A. (Edmondson) Edgar.[1989]

Charles Thorndike received an A.B. degree from Harvard College in 1854, and A.M. and LL.B. degrees in 1857. He practiced law with Edward Ingersoll Browne under the firm name of Browne & Thorndike. Their grandfathers, Moses Browne and Israel Thorndike, had been business partners under the same firm name.[1990] E. I. Browne's estate was of a moderate size, but it accumulated income so that upon distribution in 1975 several beneficiaries received sizeable amounts, the most notable and visible being the "Browne Fund" left the City of Boston for statues and monuments.[1991]

EIGHTH GENERATION

129. CAPTAIN GEORGE[8] THORNDIKE (Joshua[7–6] Ebenezer[5] Robert[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at South Thomaston, Maine 5 November 1814 and died at Stow, Massachusetts 17 April 1895.[1993] He married 6 November 1836,[1994] ARETHUSA SLEEPER, who born at South Thomaston 20 November 1818 and died at Stow 3 September 1893,[1995] daughter of Jesse and Rebecca (Bridges) Sleeper, and sister of Captain Elias P. Sleeper, who married Helen Marr[8] Thorndike (see No. 71) and Eliza A.[8] Thorndike (see No. 77).[1996]

Captain Thorndike engaged in shipbuilding in his native town, building nineteen vessels in his own shipyard. He was a state senator from 1850 to 1855 and Councilor in 1859 and 1860. To him belongs the distinction of being the first volunteer from Maine in 1861 and of serving in the defense of Washington, D.C. He removed to Rockland, Maine, and sailed the India ship Kate Sweetland. In 1865 he was elected Clerk of Courts, but soon resigned and took command of the Otago in the same year.

George Thorndike was born in Thomaston, Maine; however, through his influence, in 1872 the section where he was born was made a separate township with the name of South Thomaston.[1997]

Maine 13 March 1858 and died at Rockland 26 July 1926, daughter of Justus I. and Emily R. (Erskine) Richardson.[2319]

A sketch of Fred A. Thorndike relates that in 1877 he "hit the trail" in search of wealth in the Dakotas, but soon returned to his Maine home "with assets consisting of an old horse, a beef cart, and a man's promise to liquidate a debt of $60," which was never paid, and he was forced to accept in part payment a beef cow, with which as a beginning he embarked in the slaughtering business, a line in which he had previously been engaged. He built up a large and lucrative business at Rockland, and in 1888 took as a partner H. I. Hix, the firm name being Thorndike and Hix. From meats the business was expanded to include provisions, lobsters, corn canning, wood, coal and other commodities, largely through absorption of other concerns. It is said that the firm did a business in one particular year of a million and a half dollars, of which six hundred thousand was in lobsters alone. In politics a Republican, he was more or less active in city affairs and served Rockland as an alderman.[2320]

An alumnus of Boston Latin School and Harvard College (1847), "he had intended to study a profession, but after graduation the state of his health was such that this purpose was deferred, and he travelled abroad, giving himself to art studies, especially painting, which became with him, to some extent, a profession. ... After his marriage, as before, he spent a considerable portion of his time in Europe, but of late years he has made his home in Boston."[2417]

In 1980, George Quincy[10] Thorndike (see No. 356) wrote the following account of his grandfather's career: "In 1864 he was commissioned by the United States Congress to paint Longfellow's 'Wayside Inn' at Sudbury, Massachusetts. He was a member of the National Academy and is listed in the current French Encyclopedia of Artists (Le Benezit). In 1976 the Smithsonian Institution undertook a Bicentennial Inventory of American Artists before 1914. With the cooperation of various family members, we

196. JOSEPH H.[8] THORNDIKE (Zelotes[7] Hezekiah[6–5] James[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Boston, Massachusetts about 1830. He married FANNY SPELLMAN, who was born at Granville, Massachusetts.

Joseph H. Thorndike, a farmer, lived at Brimfield, Massachusetts, in 1851, and for some years thereafter. In 1871 and 1877 he appears on deeds recorded in Hampden County, Massachusetts, as of Suffield, Connecticut, and in 1879 as of Ludlow, Massachusetts.[2437]

197. JOHN LARKIN[8] THORNDIKE (Samuel C. F.[7] Paul[6–5] James[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Malone, New York 21 September 1834[2440] and died at Lima, Peru 12 October 1901.[2441] He married at Concepción, Chile about 1859,[2442] GENOVEVA MARÍA MATHIEU GONZALEZ, who was born there 3 January 1839 and died at Lima 9 January 1906, daughter of Luis Serrano Mathieu Andrews and Manuela Agripina Gonzales Echenique.

In 1980, Felipe Antonio[11] Thorndike Beltrán (see No. 394) wrote: "John Larkin Thorndike was the typical Yankee pioneer and adventurer. He became enthusiastic [about] the promotional activities of a certain Henry Meiggs of San Francisco, and in the year 1855 or thereabouts, accepted the position of Chief Engineer in Henry Meiggs' railroad building enterprise in Chile. By the end of 1860, John Thorndike had become Henry Meiggs' right-hand man in South America, and was building two railroads in Chile—one of which is the Iquique-Antofagasta railroad still in operation.

"In 1870 he transferred to Peru, where Meiggs had undertaken to build two more railroads. In 1878 Henry Meiggs died, and John Larkin Thorndike succeeded him in business, becoming quite well off financially as a result of this enterprise.

"He built the Puno-Mollendo railroad, which has now been lengthened to La Paz, Bolivia and constitutes the main throughway for cargo leaving Bolivia to the Pacific. He later built the railroad from Oroya to Callao, which [is today] the world's highest conventional track railroad.

[2442]Notes by Sarah Gilbert Thorndike and Roberto Thorndike Galup.

"In the process of building these railroads, the Balta government—which had retained Meiggs and subsequently Thorndike—went bankrupt; Thorndike survived the bankruptcy by taking certain land rights in the ports of Chimbote and Callao, and mining claims near Oroya. Not being a man well versed in mining, Thorndike sold the mining claims for a small amount to some New York financial interests, who thereupon organized the Cerro de Pasco Copper Corporation on what had [once] been Thorndike's claims."[2443] works of the Neo-Impressionist and Avant Garde artists then living in Paris. Several of these artists became his friends. ...

"During World War I, [Charles] and his brother, Jim, served in the American Ambulance Corps. Later, Charles became a close friend of the artist Henri Matisse, who continued his friendship with the family after Charles' death. During World War II, Matisse helped Alexandrine hide her extensive art collection in Alpine caves just before the Nazis commandeered 'Villa Jim' [the Thorndikes' house in Nice] as an officers' residence.

"Alexandrine died in 1969..., and Charles' collection, including about forty of his own paintings, was left to her son, Henri Donias (1891–1972). Later, sixteen of Charles' works were given to Mrs. R. Amory Thorndike of Bar Harbor, Maine."[2567]

Dr. Augustus Thorndike prepared for college at G.W.C. Noble's School in Boston, and was a member of the Class of 1884 at Harvard College and 1888 at Harvard Medical School. After a few years in general practice, Dr. Thorndike "devoted himself exclusively to orthopedic surgery until his retirement in 1918. A pioneer in establishing and conducting special training courses to equip cripples with occupations or trades conforming to their individual handicaps, he was a founder of the Industrial School for crippled and deformed children in Boston [now the Cotting School in Lexington] and the Massachusetts state hospital school for cripples at Canton. The former, opened in 1894, was the first institution of its kind in this country. ... His published writings include 'A Manual of Orthopedic Surgery' (1907), which was widely used as a textbook in medical schools. He was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a member of the American Orthopedic Association (president, 1909–10).... Despite his international

6 Feb. 1926, ALEXIS URIEVITCH SOMMARIPA, b. at Odessa, Russia in 1900, killed in action in Germany 28 March 1945, son of Uri Grigorivitch Samorupo and Elena Mstislavna Nestroyeva.[2591]

Alexis Sommaripa graduated from Harvard Business School in 1924, after which he worked for Du Pont, where he helped develop rayon. "In 1942 he joined the Office of Strategic Services and was sent to Europe as a language expert with the rank of simulated captain. The Psychological Warfare Branch of OSS decided to put loudspeakers on tanks in an effort to get German soldiers to surrender at the front lines. My father and his crew confronted the enemy close to their front lines, and in German using the loudspeaker, convinced them to give up their arms. Alexis achieved a certain amount of fame and success in this capacity. Known as the 'mad Russian' for his reckless bravery, he succeeded in convincing some 8,000 German soldiers to surrender to the Americans.

"He was killed in action in Germany on March 28th, 1945. Because of his service and bravery, Alexis was awarded the Bronze Star, the Silver Star, and the Croix de Guerre posthumously. He lies buried in the American Military Cemetery in Luxembourg, the only civilian among the 5,000 dead there."[2592]

239. DR. ASHLEY HORACE[9] THORNDIKE (Edward R.[8] Ebenezer[7–5] Robert[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]), a professor of English, was born at Houlton, Maine[2786] or Williamsburg, Massachusetts 26 December 1871[2787] and died at New York, New York 17 April 1933.[2788] He married at Hatfield, Massachusetts 21 June 1899,[2789] ANNETTE MARION LOWELL, who was born at West Springfield, Massachusetts 5 August 1874, daughter of Isaac Bunce and Anna Adeline (Streeter) Lowell.[2790]

Dr. Ashley H. Thorndike prepared for college at the Boston Latin School. He received an A.B. degree from Wesleyan University in 1893, and an A.M. (1896) and Ph.D. (1898) from Harvard University. He became a professor of English at Northwestern University in 1902, and in 1906 joined the faculty of Columbia University. He served as president of the Modern Language Association in 1926–27, and in 1927 gave the annual Shakespeare lecture at the British Academy, later published as Shakespeare in America.

"These facts, while they suggest correctly enough a highly successful academic career, give little indication of either the quality of Thorndike's mind or the range of his influence. Something of these may be gathered from his writings. His doctoral dissertation, The Influence of Beaumont and Fletcher on Shakspere (1901), was a work of marked originality which has affected the whole course of Shakespearean criticism in the last thirty years. Barrett Wendell... had been emphasizing for some years the typical and contemporary elements in Shakespeare's work, and it was probably a suggestion from him that led Thorndike to the specific investigations in which he showed Shakespeare as taking up and developing the methods and devices of his contemporaries rather than originating them. His volume on Tragedy followed in 1908, giving evidence of a finely balanced literary judgment. ... Shakespeare's Theatre (1916) is a compendious account of the scholarship on a subject that had been growing rapidly and to which he made substantial contributions. In his English Comedy (1929) he produced a companion study to his Tragedy of twenty years before. ...

"Alongside of this activity in the production of books went his life as a busy university teacher. For over a quarter of a century, he was the guide and adviser of a great stream of young men and women engaged in the graduate study of English, and these students carried on his influence in scores of colleges throughout the United States. The characteristic of the training he gave then, as of his own writing, was the combination of a profound respect for the facts with a lively interest in their significance. He did not allow the weight of his erudition to crush his interest in general truths, and he retained, as too few scholars do, a sense of the emotional values of the literary documents with which he dealt."[2791]

Dr. Edward L. Thorndike received A.B. degrees from Wesleyan University (1895) and Harvard College (1896), as well as an A.M. from Harvard (1897) and a Ph.D. from Columbia University (1898). Like his elder brother, Dr. Ashley H. Thorndike, and his younger brother, Dr. Lynn Thorndike, Dr. Edward L. Thorndike joined the Columbia faculty, in his case becoming a professor of genetic psychology. For eighteen years between 1922 and 1940, he also served as director of the psychology division of the Institute of Educational Research at Teachers' College. The author of more than 450 books and articles, he was best known as the author of the Thorndike Century Junior Dictionary (1935) and the Thorndike Century Senior Dictionary (1941). He served as president of the American Psychological Association (1912) and the American Association for the Advancement of Science (1934), and received honorary degrees from Wesleyan, Columbia, the University of Chicago, the University of Athens, Iowa University, Harvard, and Edinburgh University.

"Thorndike's scientific work had a profound effect on educational practices in the first half of the 20th century. His work was chiefly in the field of applying exact quantitative methods to the study of human nature, behavior, and education. The results in detail were concerned with the measurement of mental fatigue, memory, the correlation between different abilities or talents, the inheritability of intelligence and character, the rate of learning, and the conditions of effective learning. He also devised scales for measuring school achievement in handwriting, drawing and reading, and directed the work of students in preparing scales for spelling, English composition, and arithmetic. One of his best-known contributions was his proof that there is no such thing as being too old to learn. With Columbia's extension department as a testing ground, he kept records of night school students ranging in age from adolescents to grandparents, and from these records discovered that the capacity to learn increased until the age of twenty and then remained constant for some years, after which it usually declined slightly. His findings gave impetus to a great increase in adult education."[2799]

A graduate of Harvard College in 1866, John L. Thorndike received a degree from Harvard Law School in 1868. In 1887, with Moorfield Storey and Sherman Hoar, he organized the law firm of Storey, Thorndike, & Hoar, later Storey, Thorndike, Palmer & Dodge (and now known as Palmer and Dodge). "This firm was formed primarily to handle the legal business of the Union Pacific railroad, then engaged in building extensive branch lines and negotiating large loans. Upon Mr. Thorndike devolved the task of drawing mortgages, equipment trust instruments, and similar papers, which he executed with such care and skill that they have been accepted as models, still widely followed. As a profound student of law, in its history, principles and practice, his work in all departments was characterized by a similar degree of exactitude, coupled with meticulous care in the use of words. He was temperamentally unfitted to argue causes before juries, and seldom pleaded in court, except in cases demanding precise legal analysis. His practice, therefore, was largely confined to office work. His briefs were models of lucid and concise statement, showing a grasp of principles and a knowledge of precedents seldom equalled. He was a recognized authority on the law of wills and municipalities, and was frequently consulted on questions touching the validity of bonds issued by cities, towns or other corporations. ... A resolution entered upon the record of the supreme court of Massachusetts, after Mr. Thorndike's death, contains the following tribute: 'There is probably no man who has at once his knowledge, his public spirit, his patience and his skill in writing who can fill the place which he has occupied and be of equal service to the public. A high authority in many branches of the law, a counsellor of exceptional ability, thorough education and long experience, a lover of his profession, a just and honorable man, he was an ornament to the bar while he lived, and the unique place which he occupied and which is left vacant by his death can in our time hardly be filled.'" To the justices of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, John L. Thorndike left his large law library with an endowment to maintain the collection.[2974]

F.*[7] Paul[6–5] James[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Valparaiso, Chile 19 April 1860 and died at Chorrillos, Lima, Peru 23 March 1938. He married at Lima 16 March 1889, Doña MARÍA CARMELA GALUP FUENTES, who was born there 10 July 1873, daughter of His Excellency Manuel Galup Valdivieso, Minister of State of Peru, and Doña María Josefa Fuentes Cáceres.[3078]

"[John Larkin[8] Thorndike] thought highly of his eldest son, Ernesto, and sent him to be educated in Boston in a private school. Ernesto decided to remove himself to a public school and thereby saved his allowance until he graduated. He never attended college. Upon his graduation, Ernesto took himself and his savings to Nicaragua, where he bought Nicaraguan cedar and brought shipments to Peru, multiplying his savings manyfold, and thereby beginning a small fortune of his own. I [Felipe Antonio[11] Thorndike Beltrán (see No. 394)] have personally seen some of the Nicaraguan cedar in his house in the center of Lima, which has since been demolished.

"During his Nicaraguan cedar adventures, Ernesto came to Peru, only to find his father, John Larkin, going through financial difficulties; he was able to make him a loan from his proceeds that served to bail him out. ...

"In his lifetime, Ernesto Thorndike also bought and sold some mining claims; he missed copper in pursuit of silver; he bought the site of Zorritos from a Mr. Tweddle, and brought the tar from the Zorritos tar fields to Callao for the caulking of vessels and for the manufacture of gas. His sisters did not find this activity very profitable, and prevailed upon him to stop paying the mining dues and give up the claim. Later on, oil was found in Zorritos!

"However, Ernesto did very well in real estate. He developed part of the townsites of Callao and Chimbote, and prospered through his real estate holdings there and in the townsite of Lima.

"During his stay in the United States for schooling, Ernesto used to tell his children that he bought a book whose message was threefold:

—How to make money.
—How to keep money.
—How to make money make more money.

"As far as I have been able to tell from his children, he did rather well following whatever he learned out of that book."[3079]

Children, the first four born at Chorrillos, Lima, the others at Lima, Peru:[3080]

i. MARÍA del CARMEN[10] THORNDIKE GALUP, b. 25 Jan. 1890; m. at Lima 6 Jan. 1916, DON EMILIO ORTIZ de ZEVALLOS VIDAURRE, of the Diplomatic Service of Peru, b. at Paris, France 13 April 1885, son of Don Ricardo Ortiz de Zevallos Tagle, Marquis of Torre-Tagle, President of the Supreme Court of Peru, and Doña Carmen Vidaurre Panizo.

"Farewell to Peruvian Consul General"

The friendly feelings happily existing between Peru and Chile for years past have been confirmed in both countries by the personalities of their official representatives in the diplomatic and consular services. Valparaiso has been very fortunate in the appointment of Don Emilio Ortiz de Zervalos who during the years he has spent in Chile has carried out his many and responsible duties with great ability, tact, and courtesy. In the social side of his work he has been most ably seconded by his wife, the Senora Mary Thorndike de Ortiz de Zervalos, who, identifying herself with every good and charitable work, and especially in Vina de Mar, has earned universal respect and affection. ... The Chilean Government has bestowed upon her the decoration Al Merito with rank of Officer of the Order.[3081]

A graduate of Harvard College (1915) and Harvard Medical School. Dr. John C. Rock retired as Clinical Professor of Gynecology at Harvard in 1955. Four years later, his major research interest had shifted to "female sex hormones. In fortunate teamwork with Dr. Celso-Ramon Garcia and Dr. Gregory Pincus, I was privileged to prove that certain of the newer synthetic hormones, properly administered to desirous women, would give them a harmless 'make-believe' pregnancy. The imitation, though superficial, was yet so like the real state, that conception was quite impossible. The 'pill' was launched. ...

"In Europe, especially, to my complete surprise, my book [The Time Has Come] broke wide the controversy over birth control. Massive, and I believe, overwhelming are the forces still gathering, [3213]Questionnaire from Dr. Andrew Thorndike.

Andrew and his second wife were filmmakers in the former Communist East Germany. The following details of Andrew's life are gleaned from an interview with Annelie Thorndike in the San Francisco Chronicle during the 1978 San Francisco Film Festival: "In the late '30s, young Andrew Thorndike rejected his father's pro-Nazi views, became involved in anti-Hitler activities, was arrested and put into a 'punishment battalion' as a nurse on the Eastern front. Captured by the Russians, he was a prisoner of war for three years. Upon his release, he turned down his father's offer of employment in the new, presumably de-Nazified West German film business and moved to East Berlin."[3214] Andrew and his wife made a number of documentary films in the 1970s, most of which emphasized human social development, and the superiority and triumph of Socialism and Communism over the supposedly morally bankrupt capitalist system. Among these are "Die alte neue Welt" ("The Old New World") (1977); and the extraordinary documentary "The Russian Miracle" (1978) which helped pioneer the use of stills used to appear as film footage.

It is believed that Andrew may have had children, and an Internet search of an on-line German telephone directory shows nine Thorndikes listed, including an Andreas ("Andrew" in English), Helga and Katharina at the same address in the Berlin suburb of Potsdam, and an Annelie Thorndike in the Baltic seaside town of Seebad Bansin.[3215] Regrettably, none of the German Thorndikes furnished family details for this book.

291. DR. AUGUSTUS[9] THORNDIKE (Augustus[8] Charles[7] Augustus[6] Israel[5] Andrew[4] Paul[3–2] John[1]), a surgeon, was born at Boston, Massachusetts 13 March 1896[3219] and died at Chestnut Hill (Newton), Massachusetts 29 January 1986.[3220] He married at Boston 15 September 1917,[3221] OLIVIA LOWELL, who was born at Newton, Massachusetts 2 August 1898 and died at Chestnut Hill 20 September 1977,[3222] daughter of John and Mary Emlen (Hale) Lowell.

Augustus Thorndike attended Harvard College and graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1921. Like his father he became an orthopedic surgeon, specializing in the healing of athletes. He became the doctor for the Harvard hockey team and later for the football team. Dr. Thorndike "was better known to thousands of Harvard alumni as the 'doc' with the little black bag who trotted out on the football field when an injury threatened a member of the varsity eleven."[3223] He wrote the first text in the field of sports medicine, Athletic Injuries, first published in 1938, followed by four later editions, the last in 1962. In World War II he served as a surgeon with the 105th Army Hospital in Australia, rising from major to colonel and becoming commanding officer of the hospital, the largest military hospital overseas with over 1,000 beds. In 1944 he was promoted to the Surgeon General's staff in Washington in charge of the Reconditioning Program for wounded soldiers. Following the war he became chief of surgery at the Harvard University Health Services and was associated with the Veterans Administration involving the development of artificial limbs.[3224] from the California Institute of Technology in 1930. He was later a professor at Queens College in Flushing, New York.

In 1980, he recorded the following memory: "In 1929, while a graduate student at the California Institute of Technology, I went on a trip to climb Telescope Peak, which provides a fine view of Death Valley. The weather was threatening as we looked for a place to camp. There were some deserted coke ovens and a small cabin. We decided to try the latter. An oldish man with a weather-beaten face came out and looked at us strangely, as I introduced myself. Then he said: 'My name's Thorndike too.' He knew Death Valley Scotty and the other local characters, and had made 'fortunes' from his gold and silver claims, but he and his friends had drunk them up.

"A most interesting 'cousin'—quite different from the professional ones that I knew!"[3362]

365. DR. WILLIAM TECUMSEH SHERMAN[10] THORNDIKE (Paul[9] William[8] Albert[7] Nicholas[6–5] Herbert[4] John[3] Paul[2] John[1]) was born at Boston, Massachusetts 16 January 1893[3589] and died at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 10 October 1958.[3590] He married, first, at Auburn, New York 9 October 1920,[3591] KATHERINE P. HUNT, from whom he was divorced 16 February 1932; and, secondly, at Portland, Maine 28 June 1938,[3592] ELEANOR HICKEY, who was born 30 September 1901 and died at Boston in May 1976.[3593]

On 15 October 1903, when Dr. W. T. Sherman Thorndike was ten years old, he unveiled the monument in Washington, D.C., in memory of his grandfather, General William Tecumseh Sherman, in the presence of the Army of Tennessee, Army of the Potomac, Army of the Cumberland and Army of Ohio, gathered there for the occasion.[3594]

"He prepared at Middlesex School, Concord, Massachusetts, and at Harvard received an A.B. in 1915 and an M.D. in 1920. During World War I he was a private in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps. He interned at the Massachusetts General and Boston Lying-In hospitals and subsequently practised obstetrics and gynecology on the staffs of both hospitals, as well as privately. For many years he was on the teaching staff of the Department of Obstetrics at the Harvard Medical School. In 1939 he gave up his practice and teaching to join the administrative staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital as assistant director. Three years later Thorndike enlisted in the U.S. Army and with the rank of major went on active duty. As registrar of the 6th General Hospital, he served in Casablanca and Rome, Italy, and later was in command of the 154th Station Hospital in Civitavecchia, Italy. After three and one-half years of service, he was separated as lieutenant colonel and received the Army Commendation ribbon.

"Returning to Boston, he resumed his administrative position at the Massachusetts General Hospital as first assistant director, remaining until 1949, when he was appointed managing director of the Germantown Hospital in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, which position he held at the time of his death. Thorndike played an active part in improvement of hospitals throughout the state of Pennsylvania. He served as president and as secretary of the Philadelphia Hospital Association, as well as on its Executive Committee, and on the Advisory Board of the Hospital Council

Will of Herbert Thorndike, Prebend of Westminster.[3805]

In the Name of God, Father, Sonne and: H: Ghost Amen. I Herbert Thorndike prebend of Westminster ordaining this my last Will and Testament Doe first comend my Soule to God through the meritts of Christ according to the faith of his Catholick Church in the profession whereof as I hope I live soe I resolve by his grace to die, continuing in the Communion of this Church of England as hopeing for Salvation by virtue of that wherein it agreeth with the primitive Catholick Church[.] But earnestly praying that the reformation thereof may be perfected according to the same in all poynts soe farr as the present state thereof shall allowe. And I hereby testifie that I continue in the opinion which I have published concerning the reason and measure of the Reformation thereof begging pardon of God for the errors which I may have committed in seekeing and asserting the same or in adventuring to iuge of things to high for me. As for my bodie I charge my Executor to burie it betweene Doctor Nurse and my brother John Thornedike in the way from my lodgeing to the Church without any solemnitie of a Funerall only by the ordinarie Service the Deane and Prebends Rings of Fortie and twentie shillings the Quire ordinarie Duties and to write these words upon my Gravestone:—Hic jacet Corpus Herberti Thornedike Prebendary hujus Ecclesiae Qui vivus veram Reformanda Ecclesiae rationem ac modum precibusque studysque prosequebatur. Tu Lector, requiem ej, et beatam in Christo Resurrectionem precare. Item I give and bequeath unto the Right Reverend Father John Lord Bishopp of Rochester Deane of Westminster Church And unto Doctor John Fell Deane of Xt Church in Oxford, And unto Doctor John Pearson Master of Trinitie Colledge in Cambridge my Lease of the Tithes and parsonage of Trumpinton neare Cambridge, upon Trust and confidence, First that when anie one of them shall die or leave the place of Deane of Westminster, Deane of Xt Church or Master of Trinitie Colledge, the other two shall take unto them, into the same trust the Successor of the Third, being dead or having left the place— Secondly that they shall give and allowe to the Vicar, the profitts of the lease over and above all Rents and payments reserved to the Colledge for soe long time as he shall continue liveing and dwelling upon the Cure: takeing securitie of him, such as they shall thinke reasonable as well for the payment of all that is reserved to the Colledge, as alsoe for the makeing up to the summe of twentie yeares (for which the Leases of that Colledge are lett) Those yeares that shall not be expired when he shall leave the place or shall noe longer continue liveing or dwelling uppon the Cure[.] And I doe give them the Remainder of the profitts of the parsonage, in the hands of the parishioners, or of the present Vicar Master Coppinger or due from them or that may growe due from them; Only to the summe that the Colledge shall take for the renueing of the Lease; And my will is that Master Raymond be abated the nyne pound of the Nyne and Thirtie which he hath secured to me. For my intent is that therewith they may renue the Yeares and so renued, give unto the Vicars hands, that shall be so resident upon the cure, and dwelling upon the place[.] And my humble suite to the Colledge is And I doe conjure these my trustees as they tender the good of Soules, to commend it to the Colledge, That after my death they will accept of an increase of Rent answerable to the fine yearlie to be paid by the Vicar, inioying the profitts of y^{e} lease According to y^{e} custome in use in Saint Marie Magdalen's Colledge in Oxford, And because Fourescore pounds a year is at this tyme the full value of the profitts, above the Rents now issuing, my sute is that they will accept of Ten pounds a yeare in leiue of a Fine, That soe when a Vicar dies, his successors, being content to be so resident may enter into the profitts of the Lease without further renewing of it. Lastlie in trust that if a Vicar be put in by the Colledge that will not, or can not live upon the Cure and dwell there or if they shall finde that the provision here made will not be effectuall in Lawe after the death of the present Vicar or to tye him to secure that which is here required, namelie because Deanes and Chaplaines or Colledges the heads whereof are hereby trusted shall be taken away, that then they shall sell the same as soone as convenientlie they can for the best price they can gett for the same and dispose of the money ariseing from such sale and of the Rents and profitts thereof untill such sale to those good uses which they shall thinke most charitable trusting that they will see this done. Item I giv̇e unto my honored Freind Sir John Coel of Lincolnes Inne in the Countie of Middlesex Knight And to my loving Cousin Charles Asfordby Cl[er]k, and their heires my Parsonage of Greate Carleton in the Countie of Lincolne in trust that they shall see it setled upon the Vicaridge there according to Lawe and by such waies and meanes as the same may best be done, that the vicar and his Successors may enjoy the same, and that the patronage thereof may be setled upon the Deane and Chapter of the Church of Lincolne and their successors for ever. But if it should happen which God forbidd that Deanes and Chapters should be taken away by the Lawe of the Land then my will is that the Right of presentation to this Vicaridge be setled upon the Master of Trinitie Colledge in Cambridge for the time beinge till the Deanarie and Chapter of the Church of Lincolne be restored by the lawe of this Land. Item I give to my respective freinds mentioned in a list hereto annexed the respective bookes to them therein assigned Imprimis to the Librarie of this Church if I died prebend my compleate Atlas of Eleaven volumes together with the Theatrum Urbium of Cullen in Six Tomes bound in three volumes. Item to Sir Phillipp Warwick Codex Theodosianus Gothofredi fower volumes. Item to Doctor Busby: S. Cyrills workes in Seaven volumes in folio Greeke and latine at Paris together with my Telescope: To Master Oley Annales Ecclesiastici Angliae in Fower volumes. To Sir Tho: Wendy Ramusio his voyages in three folio volumes Italian. To Sir John Marsham Annales Ecclesiastici Franciae le Comté, two folio volumes now three. To Sir Justinian Isham Two volumes of the Ecclesiastical History, Greeke and Latine by Walesins. To Doctor Creighton Deane of Wells now Bishopp of Bath and Wells the Rabboth, one little folio in Hebrewe at Amsterdam. To Doctor Honiwood Deane of Lincolne Hadriani Valesyrerum Transiscarum three folio Volumes. To Master Smethick Almagestum novum One Thick volume. To Doctor Gunning now Lord Bishopp of Chichester the rest of the rude Draught of my writings in latine above that which is now printed together with extractions out of the Fathers and others tending to the same purpose in two Quarto Bookes taken in such hast, that I am sorrie there will be noe use be made of them. All these are covered with past boards but I forbidd anie p[ar]te of them to be printed unlesse it please God I live to give further order for it. Item. I give all my Lands at the Three Carletons not hereby formerlie disposed of unto my Cousin Buckley and his heires for the use and benefitt of his wife and Children by this Wife Subject notwithstanding to the Charges and payments appointed and given by my Brother Francis Thorndike in and by his last Will and Testament and likewise subject to the payment of ye sum of Three hundred pounds to my two Neeces Alice and Martha Thorndike equally to be devided betwixt them within one yeare next after my decease. And I doe give my said Neeces Twentie shillings nomine pande for every month that those three hundreth pounds shall be unpaid after the time limited. And I give my Neece Allington Two hundred sixtie six pounds thirteene shillings and ffower pence to be paid her within a yeare after the death of my Sister Bolt and the ceasing of the fortie pounds a yeare which she now enioyeth And thirty three pounds six shillings and Eight pence more to be paid her a yeare after the death of Mistriss Douglas Terwhit and the ceasing of the five pounds a yeare which she now enioyeth by my Brothers Will Provided that he my cousin Buckly secure my Trustees for ye Scamblesby Lands that the fortie pound a yeare and five pound a yeare be duelie paid out of the Carleton Lands and the Scamblesby Lands not troubled for them. And if my said Neece die before she be eighteene yeares old or before her marriage then the said summes to goe to my said Cousin Buckley. But my Will is that if my said Neeces or either of them shall retourne to New England after my decease, or shall marrie with anie that goes to Masse or anie of the new licensed Conventicles then whatsoever is given them by this my Will exceeding the ffower hundred pounds which I have absolutely given them by Deed shall be void and not due soe that when either or both of them shall be married here to such as sincerely cleave to the Church of England Then the payment to be made: In the meane time my Cousin Buckley furnishing theire maintenance out of the profitts of the said Three hundreth and the said ffower hundreth pounds which I have alreadie absolutely secured unto them upon his Estate Committing oversight hereof to theire loving cousin Charles Asfordby: To whom I give power if at anie time he be satisfied that they have noe intent to retourne but to marrie as above required to see theire said portions paid them whether married or unmarried finding it for theire benefitt. Whereas my Brother Francis Thorndyke by his last Will and Testament hath for want of issue male of the Bodie of his Daughter Anne Thorndike devised all his Lands and Tenements in Scamblesby and the Three Carletons to mee and the heires males of my Bodie with severall remainders over, and hath further devised that if his said Lands doe for want of issue male of the bodie of his said Daughter remaine or come to mee the said Herbert Thorndike or to the other persons in Remainder and of [sic] his daughter doe onlie leave issue female, Then he to whome his said Lands should soe remaine or come should pay unto such issue female (if but one) the summe of One Thousand pounds, to be paid when she shall attaine the age of eighteene yeares or day of marriage which shall first happen and in the meane time the interest thereof to goe towards her education And whereas the said Anne Thornedike is dead without issue male and hath left only one daughter namely Anne Allington In performance therefore of the said Will I give to Will[iam] Sancroft C[ler]ke Doctor in Divinitie and Deane of Saint Paules Churche London and to my loving Cousin Charles Newcomen of Bagg Enderby in the Countie of Lincolne and theire heires all my Lands Tenements and hereditaments in Scamblesby in the said County of Lincolne upon Trust and confidence That they pay to my said Neese Anne Allington the summe of One thousand pounds when she shall attaine the age of Eighteene years or on the day of her marriage which shall first happen and in the meane time shall pay to her and to Hugh Allington Esquire her Father the summe of sixtie pounds per Annum towards her Education And upon further trust and confidence that after the said thousand pounds is paid they found a perpetuall Vickaridge in the Church of Scamblesby aforesaid by procuringe if it may be an Act of Parliament to that purpose or otherwise as it may by Lawe be done and settle the Fee simple of the said Lands upon the Vicar and his Successors and the patronage of the Vicaridge upon the Deane and Chapter of the Cathedrall Church of Lincolne. But if a Vicaridge can not be founded Then upon trust that they

the said William Sancroft and Charles Newcomen doe permitt and suffer such persons as from time to time by the nomination and appoyntment of the said Deane and Chapter shall serve the Cure at Scamblesby to receive the rents issues and profitts of the said lands. And upon further trust that if it shall happen (which God forbidd[])] that Deanes and Chapters should be taken away by the Lawe of the Lande then that they settle the right of presentation to the Vicaridge or right of nomination to the Curacie (if a Vicaridge cannot be erected) upon the Master of Trinitie Colledge in Cambridge for the time being till the Deanarie and Chapter of the Church of Lincoln be restored by the lawe of the Lande. And to enable them to pay the said Thousand pounds I give them the said William Sancroft and Charles Newcomen five hundred poundes due to mee from the Chamber of the Cittie of London uppon theire Bond to Master John Needham which he declared to be in trust for mee, and for my money and what interest shall be due for the same at the time of my death together with the Remainder of the Edition of my latine Books which my servant John Gee shall deliver them at my death, and my Will is that those monies and Bookes turned into monies be soe imployed that by the time my said Neece Anne Allington shall attaine the age of Eighteene yeares they may amount to the Thousand pounds, the overplus if anie be to be imployed to the discharge of what shall be expended in the Founding of the said intended Vicarage and setling the Lands and upon what charitable uses they please. And my will is that in any case the said William Sancroft and Charles Newcomen shall reimburse themselves what they shall expend touching the Execution of this Trust out of the profitts of the said Lands before they convey them to the Vicar. And if it shall happen the said Anne Allington to die unmarried before she shall accomplish the age of Eighteene yeares Then my will is that the money and Bookes Before given to my said Two Trustees and the profitts ariseing therefrom to be imployed thenceforth, or laid out and setled (as well as the Lands) for the further endowment of the said Vicaridge of Scamblesby so to be erected as aforesaid and to noe other use whatsover. But if my said Neece shall marrie before she attaine the age of eighteene yeares and before the said Five hundred pounds and Bookes shall be improved to one Thousand pounds my will is that she shall receive onely Sixtie pounds per Annum until the said summe of one Thousand pounds be made compleate and in the mean time the Vicarage not to be founded. And whereas I have provided that my Cousin Buckly to whome I leave my lands at the Three Carletons secure these my Trustees that these lands at Scamblesby shall not be troubled for the payment of the Fortie pounds a yeare and the five pound a yeare issueing to Mistris Bolt and Mistris Terwhit: My Will is that these my Trustees have power to recover Of him whatsoever they can be damnified by that trouble. And my Will is that these my Trustees denie him not the sight of the Fine and recoverry leavied by mee to enable mee to dispose of these Lands by Will. Item in liewe of the halfe of my Goods and debts I give my said Neeces Two hundred poundes to be paid them within halfe a yeare after my death together with the household stuffe of the Chamber where they lie in my House in the Little Cloysters at Westminster but under the same Condition as afore. And my Will is that the Elder of them Alice shall have three p[ar]tes of this Summe One hundred ffiftie pounds, the younger Martha only the ffourth part fiftie poundes: And that if either of them die before the other be married her whole portion goe to her Sister surviving. Item I give my Chalice and Patin to Trumpinton Church together with Fiftie Shillings to the poore of the parish. Item I give Twentie pounds to the poore of Westminster libertie to be disposed of by the Deane and Chapter. Item I give the Servant maid in my House five pounds. Item I give to my honored ffreind Sir John Coell twentie pounds and to my loving Freind Anthonie Hinton Apothecarie and Cittizen of London Tenn pounds in acknowledgment of all theire kindnes and good offices and to my Cousin Thorndike Coachmaker and to his Mother five pounds a peece if alive at my death: And to Mistris Bale and to my servant John Gee, fortie pounds a peece to be paid within Six moneths after my death: To my Cousin Charles Asfordby Twentie pounds. Lastly I make my Cousin Buckley Executor of this my Will: and my much respected freind to whome I stand soe deeply obleiged Doctor Busby Supervisor of it with a Ring of five pounds for his care in it. Herbert Thorndike. APPENDIX 3

THE TARBOX/THORNDIKE FAMILY OF MASSACHUSETTS

In the 1960 Thorndike genealogy, reference was made to the Thorndike (formerly Tarbox) family of Lynn and Swampscott, Massachusetts. What follows is a short account of this family.

EBENEZER TARBOX, JR. (later EBENEZER[1] THORNDIKE) was born at Lynn, Massachusetts 19 February 1785, the son of Ebenezer and Mary (Larrabee) Tarbox,[3806] and died at Swampscott, Massachusetts 17 December 1877.[3807] Ebenezer Tarbox, Jr., married, first, at Weymouth, Massachusetts 8 November 1804,[3808] MARY ("POLLY") RICHARDS, who was born there 24 February 1785[3809] and died at Charlestown, Massachusetts 21 or 22 January 1823,[3810] daughter of Nathaniel and Mary (Bayley) Richards; and, secondly (intention at Charlestown 4 May 1823),[3811] MARY G. (GODSHALL) BRACKETT of Boston, Massachusetts, who was baptized at Salem, Massachusetts 15 March 1795[3812] and died at Swampscott 1 January 1880,[3813] daughter of William and Dorcas (Mansfield) Godshall, and widow of Thomas Brackett, Jr.

On 7 February 1824, Ebenezer Tarbox, jun., of Charlestown, and his three children (Nathaniel, Ebenezer, and Catherine) petitioned the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to change their surname to Thorndike.[3814] On 12 June 1824, Mary G. Tarbox of Charlestown assumed the name Mary G. Thorndike.[3815]

Ebenezer Thorndike's will was signed 15 March 1876; the witnesses were James A. Mott, Joseph Stanley, and Albert J. Lee. A codicil was dated 3 May 1877, and the will and codicil were presented for probate 21

December 1877.[3816] Baxter E. Perry of Medford, Massachusetts, was to be sole executor and trustee. My property and estate, real, personal and mixed to executor. His wife, Mary G. Thorndike, an annual sum. Legatees were son, Francis H. Thorndike; son Eckford A. Thorndike, excluding a house on my land built by Clementine Godshall, she has fully paid for it; fund to the widow of my late son, Nathaniel; granddaughter, Catherine H. Emery; and friend George A. Simmons, my true friend for so many long years.

The codicil had many more detailed requests.

1. Provisions in will for my wife Mary G. Thorndike in lieu of dower and in accordance with terms of our antenuptial contract.

2. Money for wife until her death, then to Francis H. Thorndike.

3. Trust in favor of children of my son Eckford A. Thorndike, to be continued until youngest is 30 years old.

Witnesses: Waldo Thompson, Henry L. Eaton and Benj. J. Lindsey.

There were extensive descriptions of trusts and the amounts in them. Baxter E. Perry presented the will of Ebenezer Thorndike, merchant, of Swampscott, 21 December 1877. The widow was Mary G. Thorndike; sons were Eckford A. Thorndike of Swampscott and Francis H. Thorndike of Boston; two grandchildren were John J. Thorndike and Catherine H. Emery of Boston.

On 21 January 1878, a trust for the benefit of Mary G. Thorndike, Eckford A. Thorndike, Francis H. Thorndike, Clement A. Thorndike, Mary G. Thorndike, Clara W. Thorndike, Sarah E. Thorndike and Catherine H. Emery was mentioned. On 23 February 1897, Eckford A. Thorndike of Buffalo, New York, petitioned to be trustee of the estate of Ebenezer Thorndike and mentioned a trust for the use and benefit of Mary G. Thorndike, widow, now deceased; Francis H. Thorndike, son, of Boston, Massachusetts; Eckford A. Thorndike, son, of Buffalo; Mary G. Grove and Clara W. Grove, both of Buffalo, children of the petitioner; Sarah E. Thorndike, of Boston, widow of Nathaniel; and Catherine H. Emery, granddaughter, of Boston. The petitioner stated that both trustees had resigned and there no adequate provision made for supplying a vacancy caused by said resignations. The six living persons signed that they assented to the petition.
